BIG BATTLE IN NORTH SPAIN

REBELS TAKE OFFENSIVE

Attacking Irun and San Sebastian

HILL-TOP FORT TAKEN BY SURPRISE

Hendaye, Aug. 19.

The fights for Irun and San Sebastian, likely to produce the greatest battle since the Spanish civil war's commencement, commenced to-day with the occupation by insurgents of positions on the mountain heights overlooking the first named city. At one point only 200 yards separate the rival forces: General Mola, commander of the northern rebel army, is personally directing the assault.

A thousand militiamen from Bilbao have arrived at Irun to reinforce the Government forces there, while it is reported that hundreds of foreign volunteers, many of them expert machine-gunners, have arrived at San Sebastian to assist the Government forces in the defence of the city.

Meanwhile the flight of refugees continues, in steadily increasing numbers. Over 500 women and children crossed the frontier during to-day, but men of all ages remained behind to support the Popular Front party. Other refugees are "squatting" on the Spanish side of the frontier, ready to leave at once if the battle extends as far as the border.—Reuter.

9,000 In Battle

Hendaye, Aug. 19.
Some 9,000 men are participating in the battle for Irun, which the insurgent forces are attacking. The rebels, by night, advanced by a defile to the hill on which Irun's fortress is situated, only 600 yards from the city itself. Here the attackers captured a Government artillery battery, despite the shell-fire from a Government torpedo-boat on a nearby river.

Hundreds of refugees from Irun have fled across the frontier into France.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

Rebels Repulsed

Madrid, Aug. 19.
It is authoritatively stated that loyalists repulsed a rebel attack in the vicinity of Naval, in North Spain, with 600 casualties.—United Press.

Grim Threats

San Sebastian, Aug. 19.
Loyalists here indicate they are prepared to blow up Fort Guadalupe, with more than 1,500 alleged rebel sympathisers imprisoned there, if the assault on the city by the insurgent forces continues. A sergeant of the garrison, interviewed by a United Press correspondent gave the distinct impression that he and his comrades were prepared to blow up the stores of dynamite in Guadalupe Fortress, rather than surrender. Meanwhile, loyalists, scattered along the San Sebastian highway, repulsed a tentative thrust of rebels, and captured seven, including two priests. Two of the prisoners they immediately executed. A Government torpedo-boat has shelled the rebel positions in the hills behind Irun and it is reported that loyalist aircraft have dropped thirty bombs on Chimenea barracks, Gijon, as a prelude to a drive on that point.—United Press.

Rebels Rescued

Lisbon, Aug. 19.
From Seculo it is reported that the rebels have captured Baenam, southwest of Cordoba, relieving the beleaguered Civil Guards who were on the verge of surrender there after an eleven-day siege, in which the loyalists stabbed to death 180 prisoners. It is said the loyalists had sacked the city, robbed the chief property owner of 1,000,000 pesetas, and there.—(Continued on Page 18.)

FURTHER TYPHOON VICTIMS

SEVEN MORE BODIES FOUND IN WATER

Seven more bodies of Chinese, victims of Monday's typhoon, were recovered from the harbour by police launches yesterday. They included men, women and children.

Among the most tragic discoveries was that of a woman, aged about 30, with a three-year-old child strapped to her back, at Aldrich Bay, Taikeo. At So Ko Wan, a 15-year-old girl was found with a small baby on her back.

Ho So Ming, one of the victims of the nullah tragedy in the upper levels, was also discovered in the harbour. So far only two of the bodies have been claimed by relatives. Li Mo-tai, fisherman, of Sha Tau Kok, was admitted to Kowloon Hospital yesterday suffering from severe burns received when he received a charge of electricity on Monday. While working on a cargo junk, he touched the mast, which although wooden, was saturated with water and acted as a conductor for electricity when it fouled an electric power wire.

PLANE HITS SHIP MAST

STRANGE MISHAP AT SINGAPORE

Singapore, Aug. 19.
Both the instructor and his pupil were injured when a dual-controlled seaplane crashed into the mast of a steamer in harbour here to-day.

The crash snapped the mast and the engine of the plane became detached and hurtled on to the bridge, marvellously missing the Captain and two Malay quartermasters.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

CRUISER FIRES ON GERMAN VESSEL

BERLIN TAKING SERIOUS VIEW

Berlin, Aug. 19.

The German steamer Kameron, bound for Genoa with refugees from Spain, was fired on and searched by a Spanish Government cruiser, the Libertad, according to an official German news agency despatch.

Three shots were fired by the cruiser to compel the Kameron to halt. The vessel was then searched by a party from a Spanish Government submarine. The incident occurred seven and a half miles off the coast of Cadiz. The Kameron was allowed to proceed after Spanish officers had made their search.—Reuter.

SERIOUS VIEW

Berlin, Aug. 19.

The hold-up of the German steamer Kameron, by a Spanish Government cruiser, while the vessel was carrying refugees from Spain to Genoa, is regarded as a serious matter in competent German circles.

Three shots were fired to compel the Kameron to halt, whereafter a submarine's party searched her. It is stated that the incident will be the subject of an energetic protest.

It is pointed out that the stopping of a German vessel by gunfire outside Spanish territorial waters constitutes a violation of international law.—Reuter Special.

DESTROYER UNDER FIRE

London, Aug. 19.

The British destroyer Blanche, which is in the vicinity of Melilla, was bombed on Monday by aeroplanes belonging to the insurgent forces in Spain, in mistake for the Spanish destroyer leader Jose Luis Diaz. Fortunately the British warship escaped damage.

Immediately afterwards, the British authorities received apologies from the rebel leaders, who, in expressing their regret, offered the explanation that the Blanche was mistaken for a Spanish destroyer.—British Wireless.

CAN'T KEEP OUT OF WAR

U.S. AND CANADA WARNED

Toronto, Aug. 19.

The United States and Canada cannot keep out of a world war, declared Vincent Elblanc, when addressing the Canadian Empire Club here to-day.

Lord Elblanc pointed out that Australia, New Zealand and South Africa were building up air defences, and said the Canadian problem of air defence was as vital as in any part of the Empire.

Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and even Vancouver were within range of aeroplanes carrying incendiary bombs with a radius of 5,000 miles, Lord Elblanc said he did not believe that Canadians fully realised the danger to coastal points.—Reuter.

MYSTERIOUS FIRES IN U.S. NAVAL YARDS

Quincy, Mass., Aug. 20.

For the seventh time in a few months, a serious fire has occurred in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's naval shipbuilding yards here.

The latest incident has occurred aboard the U.S.S. Vincennes, a cruiser now under construction.

The fire, which was possibly caused by a short circuit in the electrical installation, started in the handling room of one of the turrets. Firemen were not able to get it under control until damage estimated at $325,000 had been caused. Most of the damage was to the recently installed electric cabling. In addition to the seven outbreaks of fire recorded at the dockyards in the past few months, it is recalled that just over twelve months ago, on August 6, 1935, a fire aboard the U.S.S. Quincy caused damage estimated at $150,000.—United Press.

MANNING BARRICADES IN MADRID CLASHES

Thousands of supporters of the Popular Front Government, including women, as the illustration shows, manned the barricades in Madrid to fight the Fascist snipers and raiding parties at the outbreak of the insurrection. The Madrid Popular Front patriots may be called upon to man their barriers for a more serious conflict if General Mola's and General Franco's armies succeed in smashing through the outer defences of the capital and reaching the heart of the Lefist Government.

FEW MORE DAYS OF GRACE

CHIANG KAI-SHEK READY TO MOVE

FIRST CLASH REPORTED

Canton, Aug. 20.

Official sources confirm the report that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has sent a further ultimatum to Generals Li Chung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi, allowing them a few more days to leave Kwangsi.

Meanwhile, Marshal Chiang has telegraphed Nanking asking for a mandate for dealing with Kwangsi's rebels and consequently the orders for a punitive expedition are expected shortly.—Reuter.

FIRST CLASH

Shanghai, Aug. 20.
The Chinese press reports that a clash has occurred between Nanking and Kwangsi troops at Loting, south-east of Wuchow and twenty miles inside Kwangsi.—United Press.

VICTORY ASSURED

Shanghai, Aug. 20.
Those best acquainted with the military realities of the present situation have been most appreciative of the patience of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek in the face of the Kwangsi leaders' defiant attitude.

Foreign military experts consider that the Central Government is assured of victory in a civil war which, perhaps, may be inevitable. The difficulties of pacifying the Kwangsi mountaineers are undeniable. Reports from Nanking and elsewhere to the effect that Kwangsi has made an alliance with Moscow or the Third Internationale, are viewed here with a certain scepticism. It appears to be confirmed, however, that the Kwangsi chiefs have.—(Continued on Page 12.)

EDEN CONFERS ON SPANISH CRISIS

London, Aug. 19.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, acting leader of the Opposition, Mr. Middleton, Secretary of the Labour Party, and Sir Walter Citrine, Secretary of the Trades Congress, called at the Foreign Office to-day and interviewed Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, on the present situation in Spain.

The nature of the proceedings has not been disclosed, but the visit may be connected with the Labour and Liberal campaign for the re-summoning of Parliament at the earliest possible moment.—Reuter.

NEUTRALITY PRESERVED

London, Aug. 19.

British neutrality in the Spanish civil war was further evidenced to-day when the Board of Trade revoked all licences previously granted for the export of all descriptions of arms, ammunition, aircraft, etc.

The order applies to Spain, Spanish possessions and the Spanish zone in Morocco.—Reuter.

NO INTERVENTION

London, Aug. 19.

"We are strengthening our defences in order to prevent a world war, and if our programme is fully carried out we shall succeed in our determination," declared Sir Samuel Hoare, First Lord of the Admiralty, speaking at Cromer to-day.

Regarding the Spanish civil war, Sir Samuel said the Government had not the least intention of interfering with Spain's internal affairs. He pointed out that the British Navy's measures for the protection of Britons and others in that country had resulted in the evacuation of 3,500 men, women and children, of whom 2,000 were British.—Reuter.

SHARES ANXIETY

London, Aug. 19.

It is authoritatively learned that Signor Benito Mussolini has assured Britain that Italy shares her anxiety to prevent a spread of the Spanish rebellion into a European conflagration.

Count Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, is reported to have given an assurance that Italy will not attempt, and does not desire, any arrangement with the Spanish rebels regarding the future status of Morocco or the Balearic Islands.—United Press.

AVOIDING COMPLICATIONS

Rome, Aug. 19.

It is authoritatively stated that Signor Mussolini believes that Italian intervention in Spain would be the precursor of a European upheaval, paving the way to Communism when

FAMOUS SINGER PASSES

HARRY PLUNKETT GREENE

GREAT IRISH BARITONE

London, Aug. 19.

The death has occurred, at the age of 71 years, of Harry Plunkett Greene, the famous Irish baritone.—Reuter. The deceased, who was educated at Dublin and at Clifton College, was a son of Richard J. Greene, a barrister, his mother being a daughter of the third Baron Plunkett. Greene intended at first to follow his father's profession, but, having an unusually fine voice, decided in favour of a musical career. He studied music with Barracough in Dublin, Hromada in Stuttgart, Vannucini in Florence and Alfred Blume and Francis Korbay in London.

After appearing at a concert in Dublin in 1887 he sang in the "Messiah" at the London People's Palace in January, 1888. Two months later he took part in Gounod's "Redemption" and thereafter was engaged for most of the important London concerts. In 1890 for a short period he sang on the operatic stage at Covent Garden, achieving signal success as the Comendatore in "Don Giovanni" and the Duke of Verona in "Romeo and Juliet".

It was, however, in recitals which he gave with Leonard Borwick that he made his most decisive mark both in regard to the beauty of his voice and the finesse of his interpretation. From 1902 onwards he appeared in the first productions of many of Pary's works, making in that year a profound impression by his creation of the part of Job in the oratorio of that name on its production at the Gloucester Festival. Stanford wrote a number of his finest songs specially for him.

Greene made many tours in Europe and America and was everywhere hailed as one of the greatest exponents of English song in his generation. For several years he lectured at the Royal College of Music and the Royal Academy of Music and his book "Interpretation of Song" contains the essence of his teaching.

CURTAINS

Treat them like pictures and—
Give your room a new view

Says JOHN BETJEMAN

THE train takes me past many miles of houses every day. From the windows various curtains flutter like Monday's washing—brown and dingy, orange and arty, pink and sickly. There's never much variation. You would think people didn't care what their windows looked like so long as they let in plenty of light.

Inside effects

IN Georgian days, just over a century ago, when people knew more about decoration and architecture than they do now, windows were treated like valuable pictures. They were carefully framed—but then there were more views to be seen from windows. The windows were not decorated with curtains whose chief effect was external. The architect saw to it that they looked well proportioned in a house. If you have a large, high window, or a French window which it is a pleasure to look at, then you must make something of the view, so that it becomes a huge picture on the wall as well as a hasty escape into the garden when some one you don't want to see comes to call.

You can make the window look well with a compact frame of curtains. When choosing stuffs for French windows remember that the larger the pattern and the heavier the material the better the effect. Heavy material keeps the sun from overheating the room in summer and keeps house warm in winter. There are many fadeless fabrics obtainable for curtains.

Choose a pattern that will not irritate you after a time with its so-called "modernity." The old flower patterns or plain fabrics with a wide border are better than most. There are some excellent new patterns produced now, and revivals of old ones.

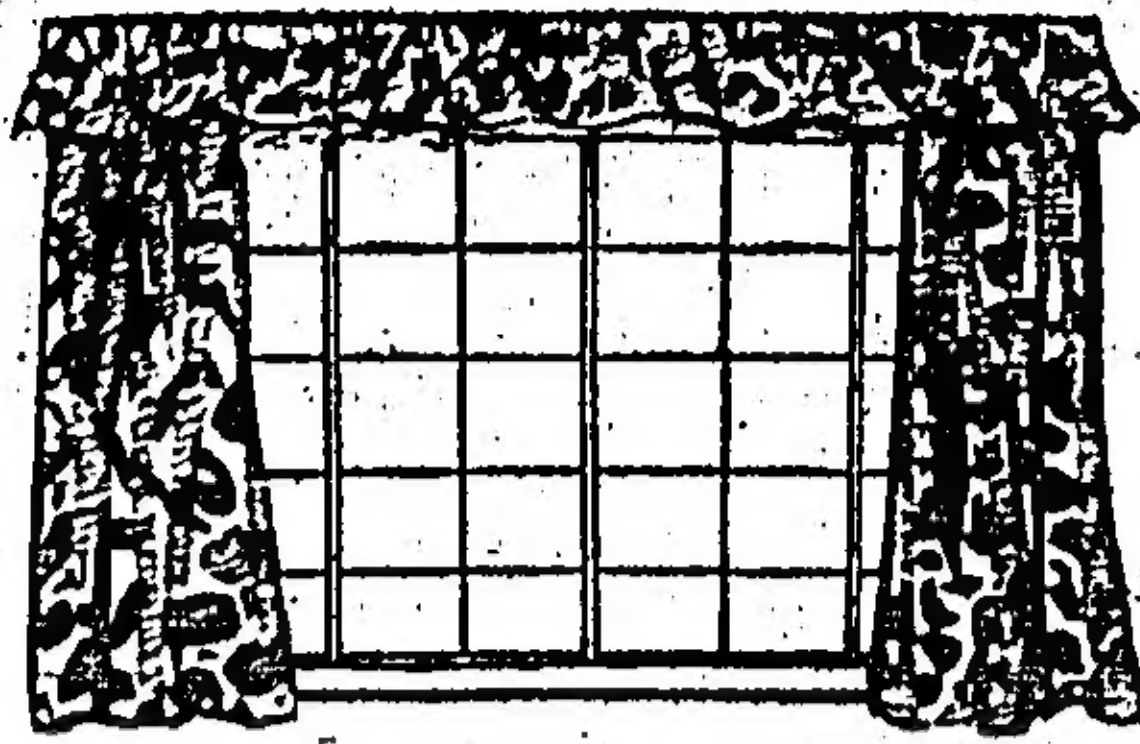

Take care

THOUGH it sounds a little wild, very bold rich colours are best for heavy curtains to big windows—scarlet, crimson, blue, bright primrose yellow, etc. The patterns you select for your curtains will probably look very different from how you see them in the shop unless you take this precaution. Hold the fabric up to the light and try to imagine how it will appear when the sun is striking through it. See it in artificial light and notice whether the colours change. Greens are often susceptible to electric light and vary strangely.

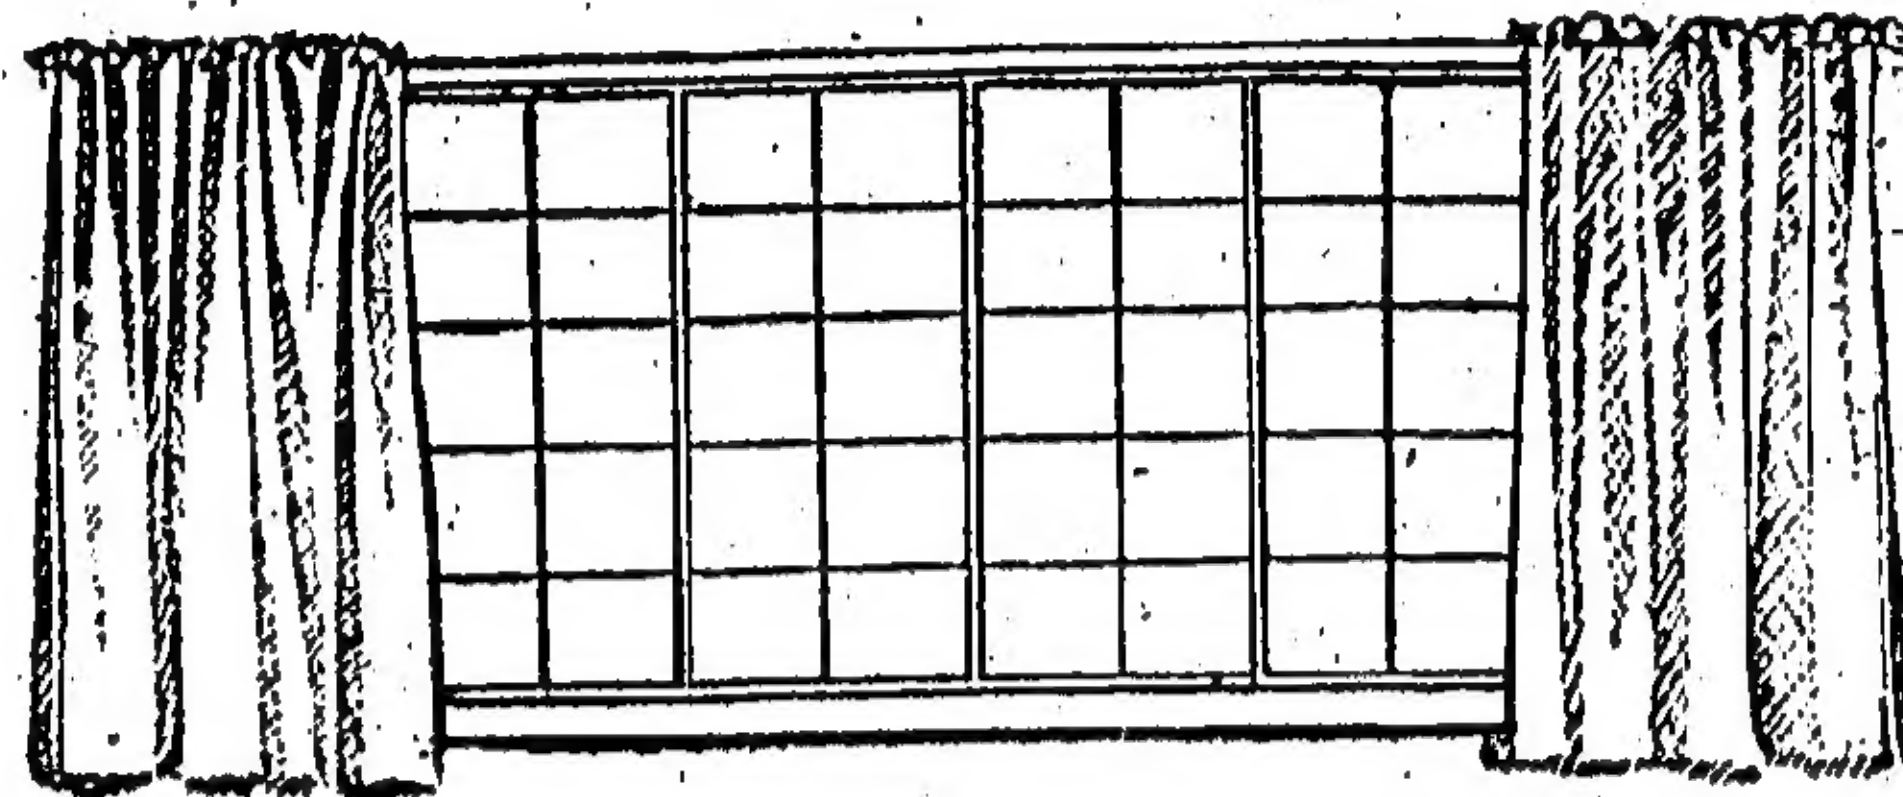

If you have bought a semi-transparent fabric, line it with plain cotton of some dark colour.

Fashions

FOR small windows in bedrooms and bathrooms choose small patterns. Glazed chintzes with old-fashioned patterns of little roses or coral look well. You can make a small curtain quite trackable and wind-resisting by lining it with a mixture of wool and cotton. Domett keeps out the light when the curtains are drawn. Do not use a valance or pelmet in a small window. It takes off too much light during the day.

● How not to arrange your curtains. Pattern is too large for small window; pelmet keeps out the light.

● A better way. Plain curtains and no pelmet. Curtain rod extends beyond window to give maximum amount of light.

Hold fast

HAVE the curtain rod made a quarter as long again as the window-frame. Fix it an inch above the frame and let the ends which project beyond the window be fixed into the wall. The best method of doing this is to nail or plug a piece of wood on to the wall (paint the wood the same colour as the wall, if you like). The wood must project so far from the wall surface that the rod can be fixed on to it either by a nail (or slot) without bending. You will now be able to draw back the curtains further from the window. Curtains hang best when the rings can be fastened two inches in the case of three-foot curtains and four inches in the case of large curtains, below the top.

Importance

DO not advise your going in too much for patent ways of drawing curtains. It is annoying if you want to keep the light off an object or throw it on to another to find that you cannot pull one curtain without its opposite getting pulled too. Windows are really big and important pictures on your walls. See to it that the pattern they show at night is as good or better than what they show by day.

THIS WAY WITH White on Black

will solve a tiresome dress problem

ALTHOUGH white on black is so smart and business-like when clean, it spoils your whole appearance once its freshness has worn off. Of course, the ideal would be to have a set for every day—one always intends to have this when the outfit is new, but somehow each pay-day brings more urgent demands, and the extra set is never purchased. Do not despair—you hard-worked business girls, who wash your collars and cuffs overnight, and iron and sew on again before breakfast the next morning, the latest idea is to make yourselves a "two-way" reversible set.

It is perfectly simple. In pique, cloque or linen—organdy does not lend itself to the scheme—choose a flat design (no frills) cut it out double, and be careful to finish off both sides alike. Collars and cuffs never get really dirty on the under side, and if made in this way can be taken off and worn reversed as soon as the top side shows signs of grubbiness. Pique is very accommodating, and one side can be worn for two days without fear of offending the most immaculate chief; then the other side for two days.

If the set were put on clean on Monday morning, it need not be changed until Tuesday night, and the second side would carry you through until Thursday night. For Friday and Saturday why not two flowers at your neck? During the week-end, at your leisure, you could give your two-way collars and cuffs a really good wash ready and fresh again for Monday morning.

Girls' and Boys' Corner

Your FIRST MODEL YACHT...

How to Build It—and the Tools Required

MANY boys long to build a model yacht but do not know how to begin or what tools are required. Here, then, is a simple design for a boat which can be made very easily.

You will need a large pocket-knife, a chisel, a small iron plane, a 1/2-inch gouge and a spokeshave; a screw-driver, a light hammer, and a saw will also be useful.

Do not attempt too big a boat at first, the one shown on the diagram is 24 inches long, 6 inches wide, and 2 1/2 inches deep, without the keel. Get a piece of soft, knotless yellow-pine, and mark out the deck-plan (see Fig. 11), then, to save trouble, saw off the corners. With your big pocket-knife, chisel and spokeshave, cut out the boat to the shape shown on Figs. 3, 4, 9 and 11. Then, using your gouge, hollow out the hull, as shown on Fig. 4.

The Wooden Fin

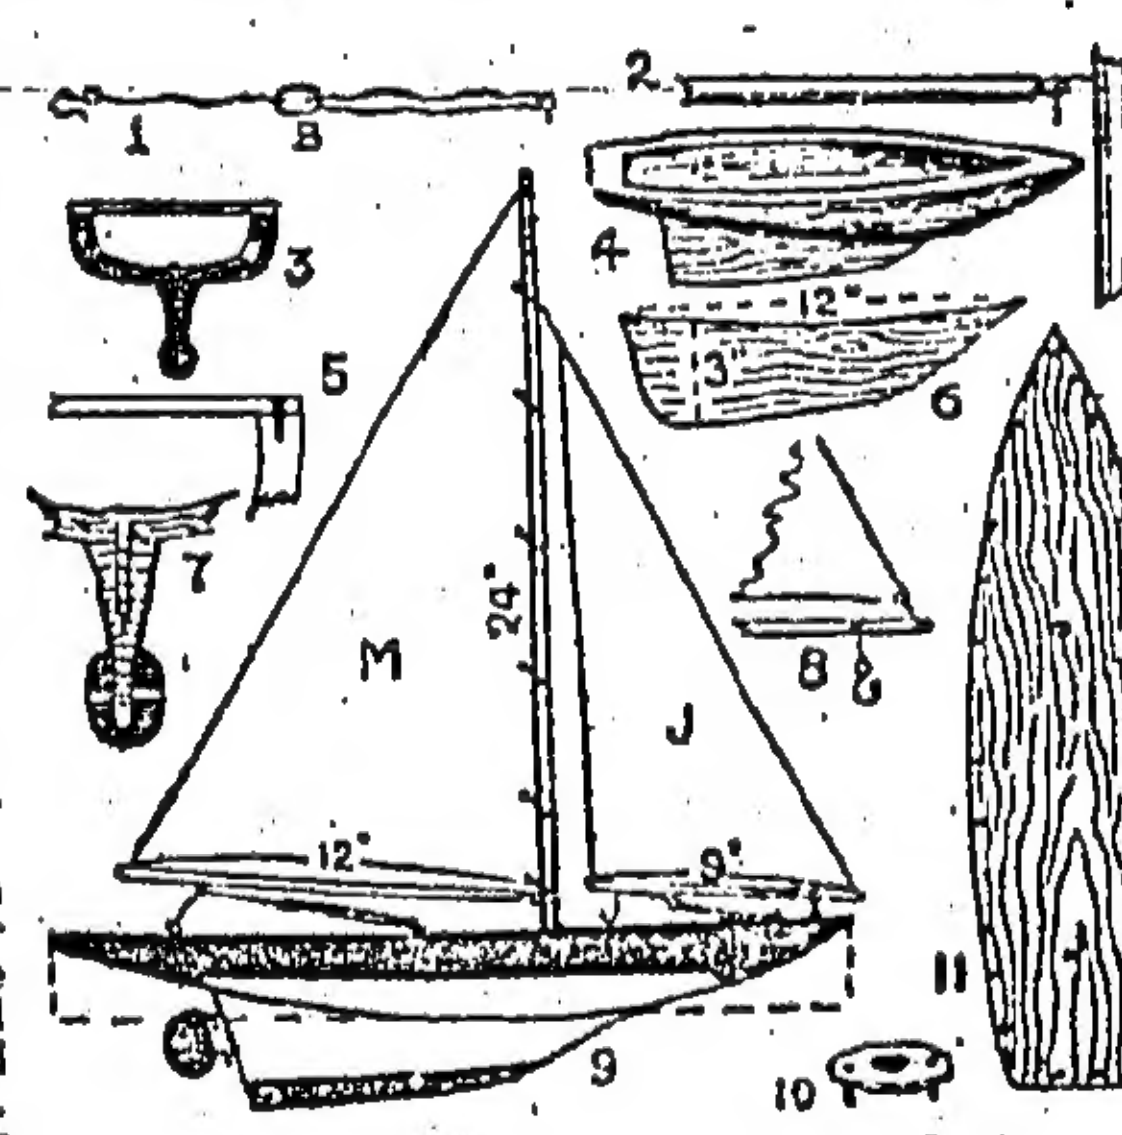

To the bottom of the hull (body) a wooden fin must be fitted. This is shown on Figs. 6, 7 and 9. Taper the wood, making it thick at the top and thin at the bottom (see Fig. 7), and screw it to the boat—with fine screws inserted (from inside the hull) as shown. Having hollowed out the hull, give the inside two coats of varnish, and fit a lead "stop" for the heel of the mast (see Fig. 10), then get a piece of fretwork wood for the deck (see Fig. 11).

Brass Screws Needed

Fasten the deck over the hull with small, fine, brass screws, in the manner shown on Fig. 5; stop the seam with gold-size putty. Now plane and glass-paper the hull. To the bottom of the wooden fin a lead keel, weighing 3 or 4 lb., must be attached. To save melting you could use several thicknesses of sheet lead, fitted as shown on Figs. 7 and 9. Fasten this with screws or brass heel-nails (clinch).

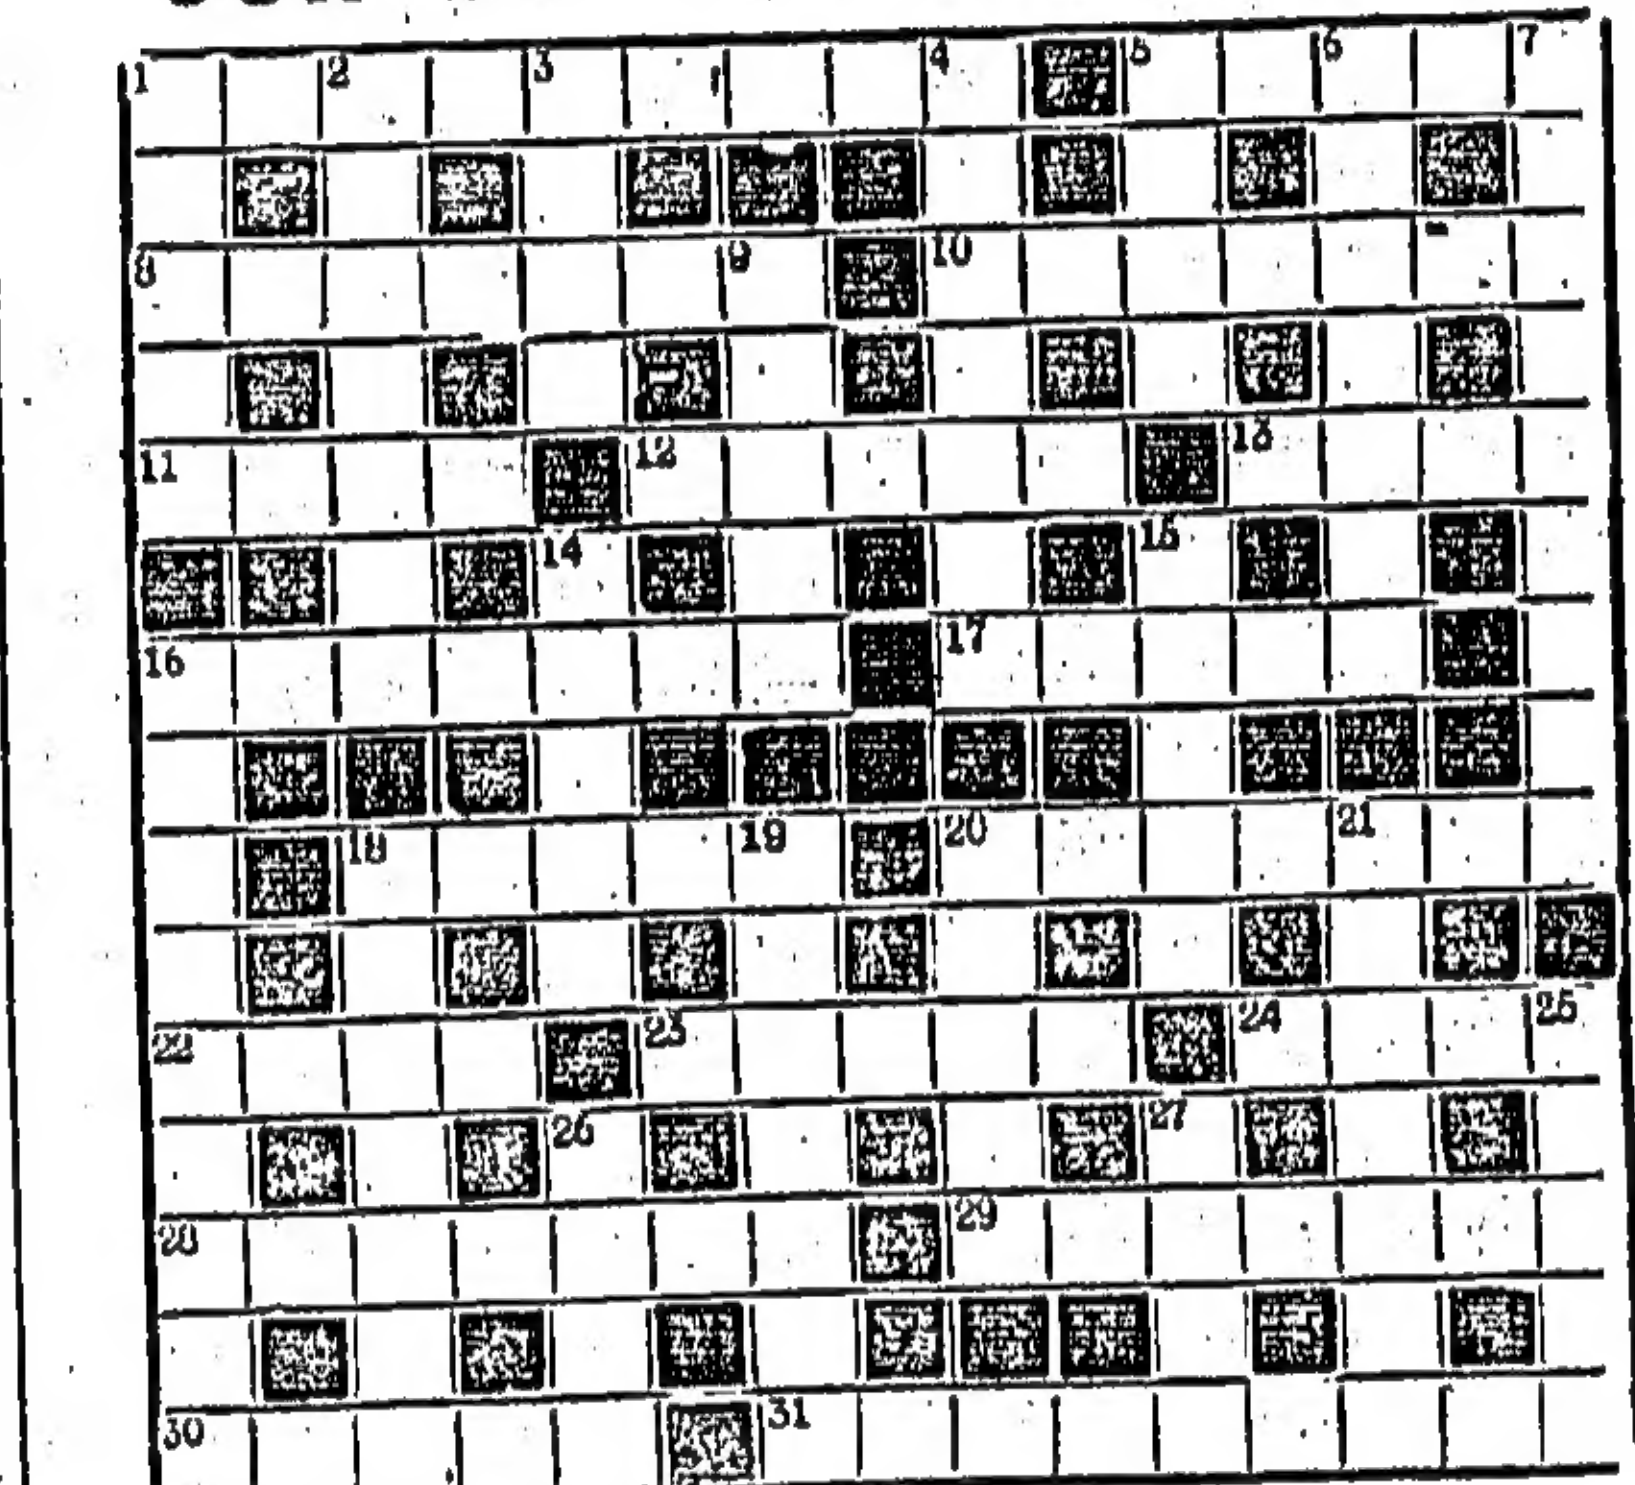

The main-sail (M) and the jib (J) should be made of fine longcloth and hemmed—always keep the selvedge at the after side of each sail. Make your mast and the spar at the foot of each sail of light wood. Shape them with spokeshave and plane, then glass-paper them well before varnishing. Copal varnish, two or three coats, should be used for spars and deck. Fig. 2 shows how the mainsail boom (spar) is attached to the mast, and Fig. 1 the tackle for adjusting the sails—B is a small "bowser." Fig. 8 shows how the jib (J) is fastened.

Having thoroughly glass-papered the boat, give her one coat of priming and two coats of paint. Now your yacht is ready for her exciting maiden voyage at the nearest beach.

Schoolgirl

HAS GAMES,
BOY FRIENDS
Peggy Anne
SAYS GOODBYE
TO ALL THAT

New York, Aug. 15.
A SCHOOLGIRL flapper, accustomed only to playing games and indulging in mild flirtations, is destined between now and November to play one of the most important parts in an attempt to dislodge President Franklin Roosevelt from Washington's White House.

Her name? Peggy Anne Landon, port nineteen-year-old daughter of Governor Alf Landon, big business candidate in the presidential fight against America's New Deal.

MISSING GLAMOUR

Republicans are very satisfied with their choice of a candidate, but they freely admit there is nothing about him to excite the youth of the nation. True, he rides, fishes, likes football, but he is essentially an old school politician. He has none of the flashiness and glamour of Mr. Roosevelt.

Hopefully, the Republican organizers want to Mrs. Landon to provide some light-hearted relief to dry, hard facts. She refused to have anything to do with the campaign.

Then some one had an inspiration. Why not Peggy Anne?

So Peggy Anne has been plucked from her games, affairs of the heart, and school books to help her father to reach the White House—to provide the sex appeal part of his campaign.

She is well qualified, striking looking, with large dark eyes that make her look much more serious than her years.

Miss Landon's face has an Oriental cast similar to that of film actress Merle Oberon. She makes a good picture and is already getting used to seeing herself in the newspapers.

But already Peggy is weary. The reason is that she cannot have her boy friends.

She went to the Republican convention in Cleveland with the highest hopes; excitedly she imagined all the dates she was going to have, but the duennas of the Republican Party said "no" firmly. "No dates for Miss Landon, she must be impartial."

Her fan mail grew overnight from nil to hundreds. There were "rush" notes from impressionable young college boys who would like to buy her ice-cream cones at college hours.

Every day she gets more and more such letters, but her secretary—yes, she has a secretary now—writes prim little refusals to all the invitations that Peggy Anne would just love to accept.

Miss Landon is not quite a seasoned politician yet. In one of her first mass interviews with reporters she opened with: "I just can't imagine my father in White House," and under her arm she carried a copy of "I can't happen here." But now she is getting used to being deprived of her love affairs, sitting on platforms, posing for photographers. That's all she will do between now and November.

SAVED BY MONTH IN OXYGEN TENT

Little ten-year-old Annie Elverson, of Westminster, has made a remarkable recovery after a major lung operation performed in Westminster Hospital, where she has been a patient for five months.

So critical was her condition at one time after the operation, which was of a nature rarely attempted, that it was necessary to keep her in an oxygen tent for a month.

ROBOT PLANES TO CRASH BOMBERS

Oxford, Aug. 10.

GREAT interest has been aroused here by the statement of Professor F. A. Lindemann, experimental R.A.F. pilot in the war, that he has devised the perfect air defence plan.

Professor Lindemann is contesting the University by-election caused by the impending resignation of Lord Hugh Cecil.

He will stand as National Government Conservative, and he is basing his election appeal on his "Knowledge and experience of aeronautical matters."

In a circular letter to the 22,000 University electors, he states: "To-day, when aerial bombardment threatens our very national existence, I believe I have a very real contribution to bring to our councils. I have alone maintained that it should be possible to defend our coastline and to prevent, by other means than mere reprisals, any enemy planes from bombing our cities."

RADIO CRASHERS

"To develop some form of defence on these lines is my main objective." From inquiries made it is understood that the Professor is working on the following principles:

A chain of wire "snare aprons," suspended from balloons in the cloud 30,000 feet up; Squadrons of Queen Bees piloted, radio-controlled, aeroplanes to fly head-on at raiding planes.

Thus the coastline could be adequately defended by a chain of balloons supporting wire aprons and squadrons of Queen Bees patrolling in front of the aprons, and controlled by radio from the balloons.

Travelling at 250 m.p.h., the Queen Bees would be sent head-on at raiding planes.

The slightest touch of one of these machines would be sufficient to completely demolish the wings of a bomber eight times its size.

RESERVOIR

BELIEVED TO BE ON HIS PROPERTY

SOLE RIGHTS HELD
BY HIS MAJESTY

Calgary (Alberta), Aug. 15.

In quest of a great reservoir of oil, drillers have bored within a quarter of a mile of King Edward's "E. P. ranch," 60 miles from here.

The diamond drills, biting deeply into the limestone, soaked with naphtha gas, are expected to strike at any moment.

As reported in The Daily Telegraph last month, it is believed that the main field of rich oil lies under the northern area of the King's 3,000-acre estate. His Majesty has sole oil and mineral rights on the ranch, which he holds on a special 99-years lease.

The lease was obtained by the King, then Prince of Wales, from the Alberta Government by an Order in Council five years ago. No contracts for drilling or exploration can be sub-let.

Any operations would have to be carried out by his Majesty or his managers. The prospect of such enterprises being undertaken has never been discussed by the King. It is authoritatively stated here. No person other than the King or his agents may drill within 600ft. of the boundaries of the estate.

Unless, therefore, the main oilfield is struck before this limit is reached the operators of the present boring will have failed in their chief object.

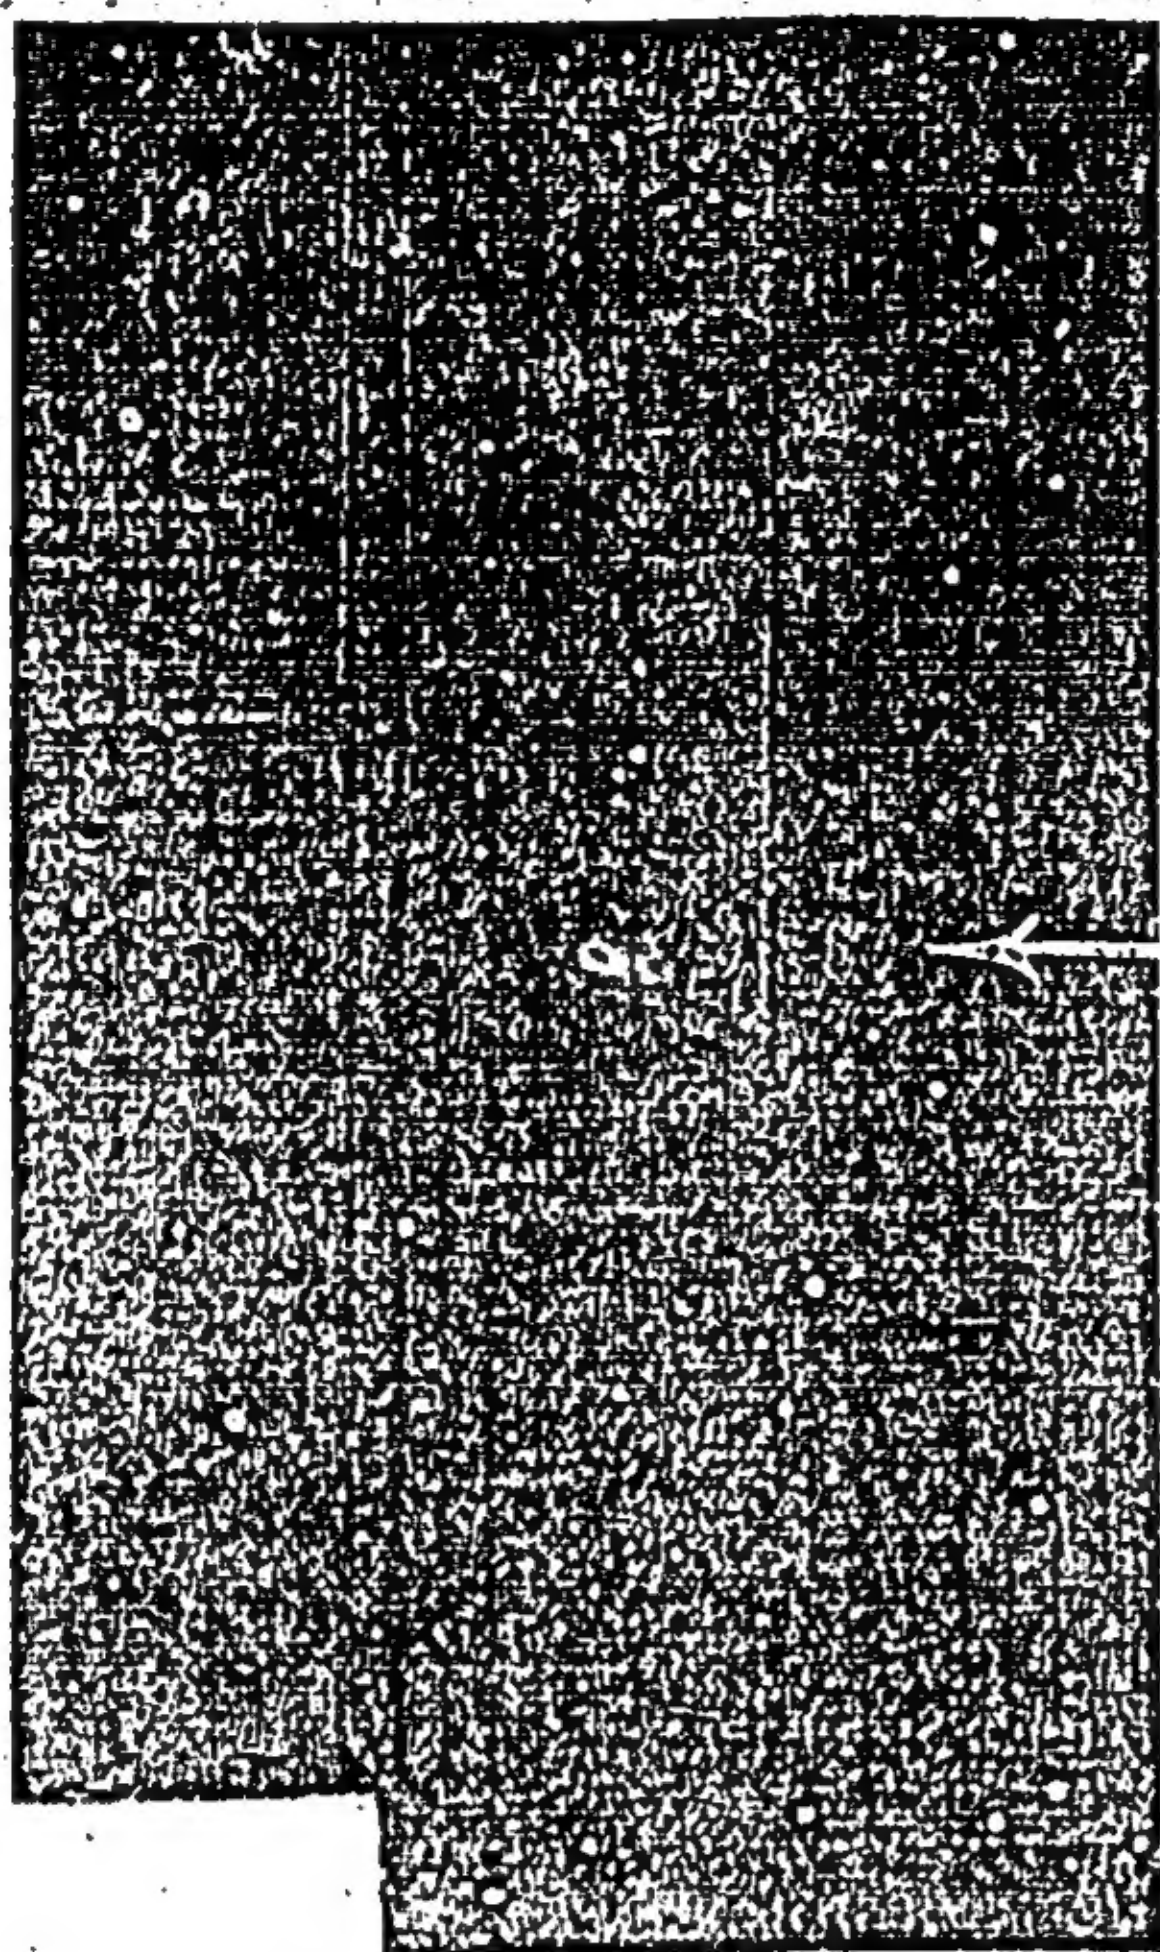

The search for the great oilfield believed by experts to exist in the neighbourhood follows the "blowing in" of a 900 barrels a day crude oil well in the Turner Valley last month. This is about five miles from the northern boundary of the Royal ranch.

True, strike, one of the richest in recent years, has been followed by others. Scores of other big producers have dotted the Turner Valley field with naphtha gas flows.

Pekisko Well No. 1 is now in gas-producing formation, and a real strike is expected shortly. Only a quarter of a mile away from the King's ranch other big wells are nearing production stage.

A strike at any one will lead to the rapid development of the area adjoining the ranch.

PIT OWNERS' COUNSEL ALLEGES PERJURY

Mr. Hartley Shawcross in his concluding speech for the owners at the last day of the Gresford inquiry spoke of the evidence of 13 men with regard to stone-dusting just before an inspector's visit in one of the districts as "concerted perjury."

"A lie is a lie, and this seems to have been a perfectly deliberate and concerted lie by 13 of the important witnesses called to give evidence with regard to conditions in the district," he said.

"The suggestion that this disaster had its source and its origin in the bottom end of the pit is simply part and parcel of a malicious attempt to cast discredit upon the owners," declared Mr. Shawcross.

Mr. Hall: You will prove that, I hope.

Mr. Shawcross said that unfortunately, at this stage, it was not possible to prove with certainty where the explosion did occur, although one could establish with reasonable certainty certain places where it could have occurred.

OWNER'S THEORIES
The Commissioner (Sir Henry Walker) said he appreciated the theories put forward by Mr. Shawcross as to the cause of the disaster.

"Whether I will be able to deal with those theories I do not know," he said. "My present opinion is that I am disinclined to do so."

Sir Henry and his assessors will now prepare their report. Despite the formidable mass of evidence, all of which has had to be taken down by official shorthand reporters and transcribed, it is believed that the cost of the inquiry will not prove in any way comparable to many protracted litigations in the courts.

Sir Stafford Cripps, K.C., who appeared for the Mineworkers' Federation and attended upon more than 25 days of the inquiry gave his services for nothing and paid all his own expenses.

He was assisted by two juniors, Mr. Geoffrey Wilson and Mr. Arthur Henderson.

The cost of the court itself will be borne by the Government, each side bearing its own expenses for the remainder.

'Fantastic' Divorce
Methods

Birmingham, Aug. 12.

POINTED comments with regard to observation kept on a house were made by Mr. Justice Swift in a divorce case at Birmingham Assizes to-day.

A decree nisi was granted to Mr. Frederick Houghton, of Hall Green, Birmingham, who alleged that his wife had lived with the co-respondent, Stanley Hardy, at a house at Selly Park, Birmingham.

When it was stated that observation was kept on the house by four people and that two ladders were used, Mr. Justice Swift remarked: "A regular scaling party."

Later he said: "I should have thought it was so simple to have proved this couple were living together without going all through this fantastic business of putting up ladders to people's windows at three o'clock in the morning."

Mr. Justice Swift stated that he thoroughly disapproved of Mr. Houghton and his agent in the case.

Tigers Besiege Chinese Village

Shanghai, Aug. 10.
In a single month over 60 Chinese have been devoured by tigers who make daily raids upon Hsienhsien, a village in Kwangtung.

Owing to a lack of adequate weapons with which to defend themselves, the inhabitants lock themselves behind strongly-barred doors each afternoon between the hours of one and five, which is the "feeding time" for the wild beasts.

The district government has offered a $50 reward for each tiger killed, but most of the villagers have become so accustomed to barricading themselves in their homes during the animals' visiting hours that no losses to the local treasury have been reported.

Gift of Roman Camp To Nation

MUSEUM BUILT OF STONE FROM HADRIAN'S WALL

Newcastle, Aug. 10.

Professor George M. Trevelyan, Vice-Chairman of the National Trust, and Regius Professor of Modern History at Cambridge, stated in opening the Hadrian's Wall Museum at Bowness, Northumberland, to-day, that the whole of the Housesteads Camp site and the adjoining portion of the Roman Wall is to be preserved for the nation.

The land is Professor Trevelyan's property, and he announced that he had entered into a covenant with the National Trust, binding himself and future owners of the site to prevent building or tree-planting.

The Museum has been built by the Housesteads Management Committee at a cost of £200 from stone used in the actual building of the Roman Wall, and dug up by excavators in former years.

It stands on wild moors, almost midway between the North Sea and the Solway. Hadrian's Wall touches the northern side of the camp, and the site combines historic interest and natural beauty.

Professor Trevelyan said that the survival of the Roman Wall in this motor age enabled many people to see the past glories of Rome. The number of visitors to the camp (15,000 last year) was now sufficient to enable it to pay its way.

Professor R. G. Collingwood, of Oxford, the authority on Roman Britain, said that in his opinion this country was grossly "under-museumed." It was difficult to get large-scale modern buildings. He suggested that a large number of small buildings should be made available.

Mr. Eric Birley, Secretary of the Housesteads Committee, said the Committee was aiming at something on the lines of the little museums along the Rhine.

B.M.A. TO STOP DOCTORS' "RACKET"

THE British Medical Association intends to take vigorous measures to stamp out an alleged "racket" by doctors.

It has warned general practitioners against the practice of advising patients to call in a specialist where such a consultation is unnecessary.

In such cases, the doctor draws a commission, or a share of the specialist's fee, as a reward for introducing the client.

There is a grave suspicion that numerous doctors have working arrangements with specialists, whereby they obtain a "rake-off" for every patient sent along.

In the language of the profession, this practice is known as dichotomy, and the B.M.A. has informed doctors that it is not only unethical but illegal.

"Any practitioner who is convicted before the courts of this offence," it says, "will inevitably come within the penal jurisdiction of the council."

CLEAR HINT
That is a clear hint that he will be struck off the medical register and debarred from future practice.

The association points out that under the Prevention of Corruption Act, dichotomy is a misdemeanour punishable with two years' imprisonment or a fine of £500 or both.

It is added that not only the general practitioner who introduces a patient, but a specialist who gives him a share in the fee are liable to be punished.

Why Should I Not Be Irish?

—Asks G.B.S.

George Bernard Shaw, who was 80 last month, confided on his birthday why he has just registered himself and his wife, Charlotte Frances Shaw, as citizens of the Irish Free State.

"Well, I am Irish, am I not? I mean, I was born in Ireland. I married an Irish wife and she understood she was marrying an Irish husband. Now that we have the opportunity of taking our own citizenship, why shouldn't we do it?"

"I only recently heard about the Nationality Act."

"Would it be a good thing if Scots could do the same? No, I cannot say that, for, after all, they are not a self-governing people."

TO EDUCATE LONDON

G. B. S. first went to London in 1876 and lived in a street in St. Pancras; for six years he was vestryman and sat on the Borough Council for St. Pancras.

After he had been sent to London a few years, he is reported to have said: "My destiny was to educate London, but I had neither studied my pupil nor related my ideas properly to the common stock of human knowledge."

Mr. Shaw's Irish registration does not affect his status as a British subject.

DIVORCE PROBLEM OF WIFE WITH HUSBAND ABROAD

Court No Jurisdiction In Her Petition

THE problem of a wife, who married in England, and wished to divorce her husband, who had adopted the United States as his permanent home; was discussed by Mr. Justice Bucknill in a reserved judgment recently.

He held that the Divorce Court had no jurisdiction to make a decree of dissolution of the marriage.

In a petition of November, 1934, Mrs. May Herd, of Loughton, Essex, asked for the dissolution of her marriage to Albert William Herd on the ground of his alleged adultery.

NEW YORK DOMICILE
In March, 1923, Mr. Herd left his wife and went to the United States. The Solicitor-General (Sir Terence O'Connor, K.C.), for the King's Proctor, contended that Mr. Herd had acquired a domicile in New York.

He wrote in 1934: "I have no present intention of returning to Great Britain."

Mr. Herd became an American citizen in December, 1930, and admitted living with a woman as his wife in New York. He had adopted the United States as his permanent home.

Mr. Justice Bucknill held that, at the time the petition was filed, the husband was domiciled in the United States, and had lost his domicile of origin in England.

The rule of law was that the domicile of the husband was the domicile of the wife.

The petition would accordingly be dismissed.

Vatican City, Aug. 19.

Osservatore Romano, in an editorial, severely condemns the Madrid Government for allegedly abetting loyalist atrocities.

"State tribunals swiftly issue death sentences against rebels, and the death penalties are promptly carried out," says the paper, mouth-piece of the Holy See. "But there has been no provision made for the arrest, trial and sentence of murderers, cut-throats and desecrators of bodies, incendiaries and robbers."

The Osservatore Romano charges it is "lie" to say that anarchists and professional criminals are responsible for the atrocities in Spain. It says the elements involved "are composed of people armed by the authorities and acting in their behalf."

The paper urges the Madrid Government to drop its mask and show the real face of the executioner of a Christian civilization.

At Castle Gargallo, Pope Pius, addressing a group of Maltese pilgrims, deplored the alleged Communist excesses in Spain.

"Only the hand of God can bring

He exhorted the pilgrims to pray for "an upset world, in a moment illness, which threatens to become even more grave and dangerous."

Shanghai, Aug. 20.

Miss Gwen Dew, of the *Detroit
News*, who left her Michigan home in February with $50 (U.S.), resolved to girdle the globe on the proceeds of space rate articles, is flying to Canton Thursday unless storms prevent her. She is now convalescing from the illness which put her into hospital here.

Her Far Eastern journalistic coups have included an exclusive interview with Madame Chiang Kai-shek, who rarely speaks for publication. She obtained this interview at Kuling, whereafter four chair coolies carried Miss Dew down the 3,600 foot slope of 4,652 steps, which lead from Kuling to Klukiang, during a driving rainstorm, in the record time of ninety minutes. The descent usually takes two hours and a half in good weather. She wanted to catch the river steamer bound for Shanghai.

Since she was discharged from hospital she has been the house guest of the Assistant Trade Commissioner of the United States and Mrs. Blind Calder, and has been widely entertained in Shanghai.

The greatly increased interest of American newspapers in Far Eastern problems and personalities is illustrated by the fact that Miss Dew is the second member of the Detroit News staff to travel in China recently and write of what she saw and heard.

The other recent visitor was the son of the noted Washington correspondent, Mr. Jay Hayden. Mr. Hayden travelled from one end of China to the other last spring, making an adventurous journey, partly by bus, over sketchy routes where foreigners seldom are seen, between Canton and Hankow. Mr. Hayden was tracing the route of the now completed Canton-Hankow railway on which through traffic begins next October, in all probability. This railway line will constitute a section of the world's longest rail system, which links
Hongkong with Calcutta via Hankow, Tientsin, Mukden and Siberia.

New York, Aug. 19.

The New York Giants continued
their push for National League honours, leaving Chicago well behind and gaining to within a few points of St. Louis Cardinals, the leaders. Giants beat Brooklyn
Dodgers again to-day, three to two,
when Ott and Rippe cracked out home runs. Giants had seven and Dodgers five hits.

Chicago was defeated by Pittsburgh, five to four, the Pirates hitting twelve to the Cubs' seven.
Klein's home was Philadelphia's only score in the game with Boston, the Braves scoring nine, times on eleven hits with the assistance of Lopez and Berger, who hit home runs.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Boston was beaten twice to-day.
In the opener, which went thirteen innings, Philadelphia scored five on nine hits, R. Johnson and Hayes contributing homers, while Boston could only get four runs on twelve hits, including Werber's homer. In the night-cap, Boston was beaten seven to two, when each got eleven hits.

With fifteen hits and a home run
by Owen, Detroit managed to get eight runs, but they were not enough to beat the irresistible St. Louis Browns, who are forging up from the bottom of the League in a late rally that is upsetting the calculations of the leading teams. Browns smashed Detroit's pitchers for fifteen hits, and got thirteen runs, including homers by Solters and Bottomley.
New York recovered itself to beat Washington, seven to four, with twelve hits to eight, and a homer by

RELIGIOUS FELLOWSHIP

During the first half of last month, London was the meeting place of the World Congress of Faiths. Its objective was neither an appraisal of various religions, nor an attempt to merge them into a visible unity. It is believed that each religion has its own individuality, and that it is best for each to develop its own distinctive values. What makes a Congress possible is a firm conviction that each has something to contribute to the common stock. The promotion of fellowship becomes therefore the one great aim. It is peculiarly appropriate that this Congress happened to be meeting at a time when in the sphere of international politics another institution whose object is world-wide fellowship (it has adopted the colder name of "co-operation") is undergoing the severest test of its short life. Some people think that the League of Nations received its deathblow at the recent meetings of its Council and Assembly at Geneva. Just as the World Congress of Faiths believes that it is good to have separate religions, and not one World Religion, so those who drafted the Covenant of the League of Nations built upon the idea that each nation should retain its pre-existing sovereignty and independence, and repudiated the conception of a World-State. But there must be co-operation. First, they must be prepared to obey a common law and to refer their disputes and grievances for decision by the tribunals of that law. Secondly, they agree to use their united forces against law breakers and aggressors. Recent events show that there is not enough of the spirit of co-operation to put League principles into operation. Italy deliberately broke the law she had solemnly accepted. Other nations refused to take united action against Italy in a cause where their own interests were not directly attacked, when it appeared that such action might end in the necessary use of military force. In short, the co-operative system has broken down. There is talk at once of reform of the League's Covenant, as if it were its machinery that had failed, whereas what is obviously wrong is the absence—at any rate among the responsible Governments—of the will to co-operate, where selfish national interests are jeopardised. Is the reform of the League by the only effective method—a change of heart—feasible? Perhaps what is needed is to change the word "co-operation" to the more passionate word "fellowship", and to accept all that the change of nomenclature implies. It is not enough for nations to act together only when their selfish national interests are obviously and directly advantaged. They must be prepared to respond with alacrity to the call of human brotherhood. Perhaps this can only come about when the nations are inspired by that sense of man's high destiny, which all religions—so we learn from the World Congress—profess to realise.

PEACE—or PACIFISM?

Ritchie
CALDER

MARCHING feet, beating a death-or-glory tattoo on the cobblestones; bayonets, yet unstained, glinting in the sun; kilts, swinging and flaunting with the arrogance of unblooded youth and the bag-pipes awakening the quiet of the Strath to a war-ecstasy...

Said a Wise Woman, who watched with eyes filled with tears and with foreboding:
"I am thinking it needs more courage to wear a white-feather in your buttonhole than a cockade in your glengarry."
To the small boy, who looked at her with reproach and shame, this was heresy; this was treason.
That Wise Woman was my mother, with two sons in the army, and that small boy, of 20 years ago, was I, who, with my generation, saw in the blood-union of War only the consecration of Courage.

IT WAS not until, in the promised years of "It-will-never-happen-again," I began to think for myself, to understand the meaning of mass-hysteria, of poster-dragged patriotism, and of lie-inflamed passions, that I understood her.

And I became a pacifist.
That, in five words, would seem to be my answer to the question, "Peace or Pacifism?" for a pacifist would see no contradiction in it. But, alas, "Peace" and "Pacifism" can no longer be taken for granted as they were 20 years ago, when Peace was a world-religion, with all peoples in its communion, and Pacifism was its creed. To-

NOTES OF THE DAY

There is a strong probability that within a short period of time France will find herself a nation with radical Socialistic leanings bounded on three sides by radical Rightists, Nazis or Fascists. Frenchmen will then experience the sensations known to Germans who, during the past little while may have imagined a pressure of political antipathy from east and west, represented by Russia and France. Whether or not this situation will have any serious effect upon the position in Europe remains problematical, but there is little doubt that some Frenchmen will feel a sense of constriction with Nazi Germany on the one hand, Fascist Italy on another, and a revolutionary Rightist Government in Spain.

With France between these forces, the gentlemen in Berlin and Rome may feel they will have more hope of satisfactory bargaining in matters of a delicate political nature. It is conceivable, then, that the allegation that ready Italian and German assistance has been given to the Spanish rebels has good foundation, and the reason for these two nations' apparent lack of desire to join in a non-intervention pact with respect to the Spanish civil war may be found in the same quarter. More and more the nations of Europe are drifting into political alignments similar to those of 1914 and earlier.

had failed, whereas what is obviously wrong is the absence—at any rate among the responsible Governments—of the will to co-operate, where selfish national interests are jeopardised. Is the reform of the League by the only effective method—a change of heart—feasible? Perhaps what is needed is to change the word "co-operation" to the more passionate word "fellowship", and to accept all that the change of nomenclature implies. It is not enough for nations to act together only when their selfish national interests are obviously and directly advantaged. They must be prepared to respond with alacrity to the call of human brotherhood. Perhaps this can only come about when the nations are inspired by that sense of man's high destiny, which all religions—so we learn from the World Congress—profess to realise.

Some years ago a sailing ship was seen one evening to put in to a pretty cove. A boat landed some men, who erected a tent. In the morning they were gone, while a deep hole and a coil of rope were seen in the place where the tent had stood. It was heard later that treasure had been found. The owner of the land wrung his hands in despair, but nothing could be done.
Many of the inhabitants of the Seychelles bear names of corsair captains of old, while graves of dead and day that question is one which searches the hearts, the soul and the minds of men and women. It must be to millions of peace-loving people what it has been to me—a torment, a conflict between that deep-seated instinct which abhors the thought of war and the reason which argues that we must think of war if we are to avoid it.

And upon my generation there is a special responsibility. That was the generation which the last war passed by, touching us only with its more gaudy plinths, bailing us with its glamour and excitement; the generation which is the parent of a new one; a dangerous generation, liable to be moved by awakening echoes and swept away by the taunt of "What of your children?" a generation disillusioned, not by War but by Peace.

Pacifism was simple and uncomplicated in those years when war-revolution was so strong that even war-books could not find a publisher, nor war-plays a producer, when we believed that militarism was buried in the whitened sepulchre of Versailles and peace perpetuated in the League of Nations.

Then, when the lichen began to blur the names on war memorials, so, too, the memories of the War gradually became overgrown. Or, like a merciful anaesthetic, men whed away the nightmares and time healed the horror-incarnations of the mind.

A subtle change began. One can almost date it from the time when people all over the world began to flock to "Journeys' End" and whole nations read "All Quiet." They called them "powerful anti-war propaganda," but, psychologically, they were dangerously significant—men were beginning to tolerate again the thoughts of war and were seeking reminders of what had seemed unforgettable.

THE WHITE sepulchre of Versailles had cracked and had revealed only putrefaction within. Its rottenness poisoned the world. Peace, which was only the War prolonged in penalties and persecutions, and which was based on war-guilt, war debts and reparations, drove nations, like debtors threatened by the bailiffs, behind the locked doors of economic nationalism.
Hatreds were born afresh. And disillusionment.
In the new, ill-hallowed world, it was obvious that the horrors and lessons of the last war had become useless scarecrows while the carions devoured the fruits of Peace, and nations tolled and their unemployed starved in vain.

"WAR meant this to me twenty years ago" . . .

And the League of Nations, noble in its ideals and honest in its conception, had become in practice only the Grand Alliance of the "victors" and of the new nations born at Versailles, all of them seeking: not true equality, but domination and humiliation of Germany.

PEACE needed a new architect. Arthur Henderson became that architect. In 1930 the hopes of the world ran high. It was to find true equality in Disarmament and in the readjustment of world economy.

Within two years, those hopes were betrayed. The Peace System crumbled. Disarmament dissolved in British hypocrisy. Hitler, Manchuria, Abyssinia. . . Nations, professing Peace, prepared for War.

In such a world Pacifism might seem an anachronism. Pacifism can never be an anachronism. It is an ever-present, ever-constant ideal, without which true Peace can never be achieved.

I am a realist, but only in the sense that I believe that such ideals can be made realities. But, at this crisis of civilisation, is Pacifism enough? With all devoutness, I wish to Heaven it were. I, for one, would find it easy to be a Pacifist, to say with "Dick" Sheppard, George Lansbury, Aldous Huxley and their 100,000 followers, that I shall never take part in War in any shape or form. If, that is, I believed it would make the world safe for Peace.

Pacifism, however, is a principle and not a policy. It has seemed to me as I have listened to the arguments between the Pacifists and the Sanctionists, between Non-Resistance and Collective Security, that the Pacifist, as an individual, had made up his mind what he should do in the war which the Sanctionists were trying to avert.

We have seen, at the National Peace Congress, where the views of both sides were expressed with frankness and sincerity, that it is possible to find a common policy.

That basis rests on organised international co-operation through the League, the progressive curtailment of national sovereignty, the removal of inequities and dangers to world peace, and a world conference to secure the adjustment of economic and colonial questions. It is opposed to increase in armaments and to this Government's arms programme and to Fascism and Nazism.

To that all lovers of peace can conscientiously subscribe, and with a Government with vision and clear-sightedness in power those are ideals which could become realities.

BUT, if a Socialist Government, pledged and prepared to carry out those ideals, were left with war-charged chaos into which the "National" Government and the last French Government have brought us, could it hope for Peace in the isolation of Absolute Pacifism? That would be as anarchic as the mad, ultra-nationalist, pseudo-patriotic, frankly imperialist, isolationism of the present arms race.

That way lies not Peace, but War, and the destruction of civilisation. Disarmament is not only consistent with but inherent in Collective Security.

So I, who am by every instinct a Pacifist, find myself committed by my own reasoning to the Covenant and to Sanctions which, in the ultimate resort, imply military measures.

But I do not believe that with honest statesmanship, with whole-hearted and loyal support of the Covenant, War would ever happen.

Not even with the so-called "lesson" of Abyssinia to challenge me. If true economic Sanctions had been applied, if the sources of war-supplies had been cut off and the Canal closed, when the letter of the Covenant demanded that they should be applied, Mussolini would never have attacked Abyssinia.

IT IS HERE that I charge the Absolute Pacifists with inconsistency. They disapprove of Sanctions, economic or otherwise. But Dr. Alfred Salter was asked at the National Peace Congress if the American Pacifists approved of their country supplying oil for the Italian bombers.
"I cannot say," he said. "They have not yet formed a policy on these matters."
The question applies just as bluntly to Dr. Salter and his fellow pacifists. Have they formed a policy? Supply oil or war-materials and they condone aggression. Refuse them and they are applying Sanctions.
The League, which in betraying Abyssinia was itself betrayed, can still be made a force for Peace.
And, who was a pacifist, am still, as a believer in the League of Nations, a war-resister.

Pirates' Treasure

FROM time to time one reads of expeditions going to little known islands in isolated parts of the world in search of hidden treasure, but whether that treasure has been found, or whether the journeys have been in vain, is not recorded. Nevertheless, hidden away in some of the tiny islands of the Indian Ocean, there must be untold wealth.

During the seventeenth century islands such as the Seychelles, numbering some ninety-eight, and scattered over a huge area, were the haunt of pirates who used them as bases from which to harry the ships sailing on the Indian Ocean. This shipping carried in its holds articles of immense value from the Indies, Silks, embroideries, ivory, gold, and jewels were numbered among other articles and as many of these ships never came home there is no doubt that they fell into the hands of pirates.

To this day treasure hunting goes on in the Seychelles. Gold coins and rings are occasionally unearthed in the beds of mountain streams that cascade through the palm gift slopes of Mahe. Ancient carvings of beads and signs of the Zodiac are to be seen on the face of rocks in parts of the island.

FALSE TRAILS

Treasure plans are numerous, and, incidentally, the Seychelles are adept at making plans for their own, and others', amusement. Some of these plans are thought to be authentic, and landowners never tire of digging up their estates in the hope of unearthing hidden wealth.

Some years ago a sailing ship was seen one evening to put in to a pretty cove. A boat landed some men, who erected a tent. In the morning they were gone, while a deep hole and a coil of rope were seen in the place where the tent had stood. It was heard later that treasure had been found. The owner of the land wrung his hands in despair, but nothing could be done.

Many of the inhabitants of the Seychelles bear names of corsair captains of old, while graves of dead and gone pirates are to be seen in various parts of the island of Mahe, while in Praslin Island are graves so ancient that their origin is not known. Probably they are Moorish, for centuries ago the Moors sailed the seas of the Indian Ocean.

Unfortunately for treasure seekers, the local inhabitants of Seychelles do not encourage treasure hunters on their land, for they consider that if there is any treasure to be found it is up to themselves to find it; otherwise leave it where it is hidden.

LOST LOOT

During the time I lived in Mahe I had a bungalow that stood beneath the palms, some seven miles from Victoria. One day I was digging in the planter for something to do. My spade struck an object. I dug feverishly, and unearthed—an ancient cannon ball. In fact, I unearthed three, which had been buried close together throughout the centuries. But, alas, they were the total amount of my discoveries.
There must be great wealth secreted in parts of the Seychelles, for the islands once swarmed with corsairs. Times out of number they would return from their forays with their ships laden with plunder. After a few weeks' cruise they would again put to sea and return with their ships loaded with ill-gotten gains and prisoners. At last they would put to sea, when they would fall in with a ship of war. A blood-thirsty battle would ensue, and the pirate ship would be captured and sunk.

The pirate captain and crew were generally taken to Ile de France, as Mauritius was then named, or to Reunion, when the prisoners would be tried and hanged.

What of the treasure of weeks and months that had been taken to the Seychelles and hidden away? There was nowhere else they could dispose of it except at their bases.

Some time in the future these hoards will come to light, and even after the Government have taken their share the finders will be rich for life.

DOCTORS CALL FOR WORLD BAN ON POISON GAS

The new lightweight rubber gasmask, which is to be mass-produced for all of us, seen at the demonstration at the Police College, Hendon.

Stop Its Use in War: B.M.A. Plea

SCIENTISTS HOLD THE KEY

DOCTORS all over the world are likely to be invited by the British Medical Association to co-operate in an effort to prohibit the use of poison gas in warfare.

This poison-gas menace to humanity was denounced at the meeting of the B.M.A. at Oxford this month. The power of medical scientists in particular to influence the course of events was emphasised and their assistance is to be sought.

"The politicians are failing," said Dr. A. T. Jones (South Wales), "and it is up to the scientists of the world to take the question up and to say courageously that this sort of thing shall not be done."

Anti-Gas School Contrast

While many of the doctors were stressing the futility of protective measures for the civilian population against poison gas, a demonstration was in progress of Hendon, at which the Air-Raid Precautions Department of the Home Office showed their achievements to date.

The subject was raised at the B.M.A. meeting by the North Glamorgan and Brecknock division. Their resolution declared:

"In the interests of humanity, the British Medical Association should take the initiative with a view to securing the co-operation of the medical profession of all countries in order to prohibit the manufacture of poison gas."

Here are points from the speeches: Dr. A. T. Jones (South Wales), who moved the resolution:

"I realise that we cannot hope to do this as a nation alone. We should seek the co-operation of the nations of the world."

The Prime Minister has said that there is no known defence against air raids and their dire consequences.

I could quote doctors who have addressed meetings up and down the country on behalf of the St. John Ambulance and the British Red Cross. They mentioned the inadequacy of any protective measures against chemical warfare.

45,000,000 IN GAS MASKS

Can we visualise what any effective measure to meet this possibly dire situation would mean—45,000,000 people wearing gas masks, for each new-born baby and infant in arms would have to be supplied?

Someone said the other day that the devil was having a good laugh at the political leaders of the world. We must all strike at the root and prevent the manufacture of deadly poison gases.

Dr. W. G. Willoughby (Eastbourne):

Even if the utmost resources of London are used not more than one-fifth of the whole population can be adequately protected.

Dr. H. G. Dain (Birmingham):

The medical profession of the world is the only body that is properly international, that has influences in all countries and that can take such a step as this.

RESPIRATORS "100 PER CENT. PROTECTED"

Dr. H. D. Woodroffe (Woodstock):

I heard from an official of the Home Office that, by the end of next year, there will be 25,000,000 respirators for issue to the civilian population.

Our British respirator is 100 per cent. protection against any gas that can be used in war. That I will state definitely as an official fact.

Sir Crisp English:

"We don't want war, but there is only one thing that can stop it, and that is a strong British Empire."

Dr. Elizabeth Casson (Hemel Hempstead):

If the whole medical profession knew that a new epidemic was coming in two years it would combine to stop it. We know we are in danger of gas attacks coming at any time, and there is no reason why we should not combine to study the medical facts of those people who want to use gas.

POLICY OF THE GOVERNMENT

The reaction of the Government to the Italian use of poison gas in Abyssinia was explained by Lord Plymouth (Colonial Under-Secretary) in the House of Lords recently.

The Government, he said, intends strongly to support the maintenance of the Geneva Gas Protocol, but that did not mean that the armed forces were not receiving instruction in defence against gas warfare.

The power of retaliation was the best safeguard Britain had for the observance of the terms of the Protocol.

It was stated that the Home Office intends to set up training centres throughout the country for the training of medical students in air raid work.

THE VOICE OF 35,000 MEDICAL MEN

The British Medical Association has a membership of 35,000. Its president this year is Sir James Barrell. President-elect is Sir E. Farquhar Buzzard. Physician-in-Ordinary to the King.

George William Burrows, a painter, died after a fall from a ladder, and by consent an award was made against his employers for £220 to his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Burrows.

A young woman then alleged that Burrows was the father of her child, yet unborn. This was not admitted by Mrs. Burrows.

The Judge said he could make no decision until after the child was born. The case could then be re-instituted, when the child's paternity would have to be proved.

CLAIM FOR UNBORN CHILD

A claim for compensation by a young unmarried woman on behalf of her unborn child came before Judge Proctor at Liverpool County Court recently.

George William Burrows, a painter, died after a fall from a ladder, and by consent an award was made against his employers for £220 to his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Burrows.

A young woman then alleged that Burrows was the father of her child, yet unborn. This was not admitted by Mrs. Burrows.

The Judge said he could make no decision until after the child was born. The case could then be re-instituted, when the child's paternity would have to be proved.

Gas Masks Weighed—and Found Wanting

(By A Special Correspondent)

I have worn one of the new type of civilian gas masks which are now being manufactured at high pressure under the aegis of the Air-Raid Precautions Department, which demonstrated its achievements to date at Hendon.

Weighing one and a half pounds, it has a facepiece of black rubber, a non-inflammable visor, adjustable head harness and a container filled with gas neutralising chemicals. It is lighter, less uncomfortable and more easily fitted by the layman than the ordinary service type.

The smallest of the three sizes will fit a child of five. For babies in prams a special anti-gas cover has been devised. For children who are neither in prams nor five years old no adequate protection has yet been discovered.

The mask, I discovered, was perfectly effective in a chamber filled with tear gas, which is unlikely to be used in war.

LIMITATIONS

Major H. S. Blackmore, Medical Adviser to the Department, explained to me that in a normal concentration of gas the mask would remain effective for about five or six hours.

"It is designed only to get people to shelter," he told me. He admitted quite frankly that it gives very little protection against mustard gas. It safeguards the eyes and lungs against mustard and that is all.

Since mustard gas, or some similar blistering gas, is by far the most likely variety to be used in the event of war the supply of masks which protect the population against all gases except mustard seems no more than a partial solution of the problem.

Between 30 and 40 million masks are to be manufactured and the rate of production will soon exceed 250,000 a week. They will be stored in depots all over the country and served out when required.

In the meantime, mobile vans are to tour the country, equipped with gas proof chambers, so that police and fire brigades may have the opportunity of testing the mask under realistic conditions.

Tear gas capsules are broken in the van. A quickly erected canopy prevents the gas from leaking into the air outside. Samples of other gases and of decontaminating agents will also be carried in case anyone wishes for a foretaste of "things to come."

Thirty or forty of these vans are to be sent out, and several are already at work.

The Air-Raid Precautions Department is hurrying on with its training of instructors. More than 150 qualified men have already left the anti-gas school at Farnham, in Gloucestershire, and arrangements are being made to build more bedrooms so that the output of the school will ultimately be increased to 60 instructors a week, compared with the present 30.

Pink Octopuses Rare But True

ONLY once in many years is a vampire octopus thrown up by the sea to be the object of scientific speculation, and achieve immortality in a glass case. The first ever found on the Australian coast has gone back to the sea in small pieces, as bait.

Only ten of these rare creatures are known to science. They were found at long intervals in widely scattered places—one in the Mediterranean Sea, one in the Indian Ocean and another on the shores of the Atlantic.

One very small one was found on the New Zealand coast years ago.

This last one, found on Shelly Beach, Manly, by Mr. G. J. Sly, was the largest of them all.

It was almost four feet from tip to tip. Mr. Sly had photographs taken while the octopus was still whole, and Miss Joyce Allan, of the Australian Museum, viewed the remains and was able to identify it.

The eyes were strangely human, and of a brilliant violet colour, Miss Allan said.

The body was pink, with magenta spots, and was described by Mr. Sly as having, when newly out of the sea, a golden iridescence.

RANDLE'S INSPIRED SHOTS WIN BOWLS TITLE

Players Erratic In Pairs Championship Final

PLAY IMPROVES AFTER 12 POOR HEADS

LEAGUE TENNIS

C.R.C. BECOME CHAMPIONS OF "B" DIVISION LATEST MATCHES

Chinese Recreation Club (1) made certain of the "B" Division championship of the tennis league yesterday when in their last but one match of the season they defeated Civil Service Cricket Club by 6½ sets to 2½.

The Chinese have thus secured 16 points from eight matches, and can not be overtaken.

Club de Recreio need only one point from their last match to finish runners-up, while Kowloon Cricket Club yesterday made themselves comparatively certain of third place by beating Indian Recreation Club.

K.C.C. play their last match this Friday when they are at home to Craigengower.

C. E. Watson came into the team against I.R.C. as Gray has become ineligible through playing twice for the "A" Division team. Watson, however, proved a very worthy deputy, and with Crawford, won all three sets. Burnett and Ramsey were also in best form and the Kowloon team won handsomely with the loss of two sets.

Civil Service put up an excellent showing against C.R.C. (1) and won two and a half sets. Bradley and Pengelly had the satisfaction of winning two sets, while Todd and Bendall only just lost two of their's and drew the third.

NORONHA CONSISTENT BUT SILVA WAS OFF FORM

(By "Veritas")

Such a poor standard of play was struck for the first twelve heads in yesterday's lawn bowls pairs championship final at the Civil Service Club that it needed a vast imagination to realise a Colony title was at stake. Thereafter a pronounced improvement was noted, and certainly the succeeding four heads left little to be desired.

S. Randle and R. Duncan strolled out comparatively easy winners against what was nothing but a one-player opposition. J. E. Noronha played exceedingly well for most of the match, but F. X. M. da Silva, chiefly, I think through nervousness, was no match for Randle, and constantly failed to consolidate splendid positions established by his partner.

Twice Noronha got in four grand shots. The first time, on the fifth head, Silva failed to block and Randle came along with a take-out to convert the position into a winning one-shot head. The second time, on the 10th, Silva was again too short with his guards and Randle rummaged home a drive to put the jack on Duncan's two back woods.

INTERESTING DUELS

Duncan and Noronha had some interesting duels, especially on the short heads, which Duncan always chose. Duncan drew with great accuracy on these heads, but Noronha was not easily put off and more than once finished with the shot wood.

Undoubtedly Randle dominated the match even though he was often shockingly short. Yet invariably he managed to plant at least one good wood around the jack, and several times turned losing positions into winning heads as a result of a skilful drive.

The luck—and there was a fair amount going—was certainly with the winners, but as is often the case, fortune favoured the brave. Quite a few of the shots which robbed Silva and Noronha of good heads were wicks off two or more woods.

The game did not begin to get interesting until the twelfth head, at which time the pairs were on level terms at nine-all. Then Duncan showed real improvement in his drawing while Randle had some interesting moments when faced with delicate situations, so that they scored on the next six heads to give themselves a lead of 10-9.

The losers retaliated with a single and a two on the 10th and 20th heads, but Noronha choosing a maximum head on the 21st, the Kowloon Bowling Green Club couple chalked up another single and so won by 19-12.

BEST HEAD OF THE MATCH

The 14th head was probably the best of the match. It started with Noronha getting shot with his last wood to lie three. But Randle came along with his first delivery and took two out for second shot. Silva drew perfectly and regained the position, but Randle responded nobly with another lovely shot. Silva drove with his last wood to disturb a finely built-up head, but the result was to leave Randle and Duncan with two shots.

The 15th was another good head. Duncan laid two lovely draw shots on the jack, while Noronha replied with an even better one. Three of the first four woods were touchers. Randle drove with his first wood to upset the position although Silva still had the shot. Randle went up again with his second and scored a wick for the shot wood which Silva failed rather dismally to dislodge.

The 16th saw Noronha lay four excellent shots, Duncan being out-bowled for once.

Randle enjoyed another wick with his first shot to lie second and with his third carried the jack to Duncan's two back woods. Still Silva had plenty of chance to draw for shot, but he was badly narrow and distressingly short.

Duncan came into the limelight again on the 17th, laying two ideal shots on the jack. Silva altered the position with a couple of really good woods, but it was Randle who settled the head. He came up on the forehead with a mastery shot and consolidated by planting in another on the backhand.

HELPED TO OBLITERATE

This improved bowling was pleasing and helped to obliterate from memory the very poor heads which featured the first part of the match.

Despite Randle's inconsistency full honours must be accorded him for his many brilliant shots in times of crisis. Noronha was the most consistent bowler of the four and was unlucky to figure on the losing side. Duncan had some good and bad moments, which is to be expected when playing on a somewhat strange green and under the stress of such an occasion. Silva, unapplying, could not touch anything like proper form, though there were times when he had reason to protest against his bad luck.

The trouble with all four players was their insistence on bowling short. Dozens of valuable opportunities were wasted because of this weakness. It was not the best championship final seen in Hongkong, but it did have its brighter moments, and nobody will deny the winners credit for their achievement.

BRADDOCK'S HAND INJURY

May Cause Title Bout To Be Postponed

New York, Aug. 18. The Athletic Commission has postponed until August 21 the decision on the request by Mr. Joseph Gould, James J. Braddock's manager, for a postponement of the scheduled fight between Braddock and Schmeling in September for the heavyweight championship of the world.

The request has been made because of an injury to the champion's left hand.

Five physicians have asserted that an operation would not alleviate the injury. However, Gould has arranged for Braddock to enter hospital for an operation on Thursday although Dr. William Walker has

ARSENAL GETTING PREPARED For Soccer Season

(By G.W.R. Smith) Sunday Express

George Allison is back in harness again after his holiday, back in the atmosphere of that severe and sombre room at the Arsenal headquarters that looks more like a bishop's study than the office of a football director.

Not that there is anything episcopal about George Allison, although personally I think he would look rather well in gallops. He has one of the hardest jobs in all the realm of sport. Keeping Arsenal on top of the football world is a task that takes a heavy toll of mind and body.

Do you know that last year Mr. Allison travelled 30,000 miles on football business? He rushed up north again this week-end. That is not every man's idea of an easy job.

Anyway, he has come up smiling for another season. His welcome was as warm as ever, when he ushered me to a room beside his curved and curve-enveloping chair.

AN ARMY AT WORK

Through the window came the noise of an army at work, the men who are labouring day and night week-end included, to complete Arsenal's new East stand.

The new stand, which is costing £100,000, will be ready for spectators on the opening day of the season, August 29. The directors' old quarters in the West stand are to be converted to the use of enclosure patrons.

These will surely be the most luxuriously-housed in the country. They will have a special entrance, a lounge, buffet, restaurant, snack bar and American bar. Anything from a cocktail to caviare is the Arsenal catering slogan.

NEW GYMNASIUM

The directors are to be housed in the new East stand, which will have seating accommodation for 10,500 people. Already the work is well under schedule, and it is hoped that the official opening will not be later than September.

"The players are to have a gymnasium, fitted with the most up-to-date appliances, new dressing-rooms, rest room, and bathrooms," Mr. Allison told me. "The trainers, too, will have new quarters."

"Terry Wilson, chief instructor at the Carnegie Physical Training College, Leeds, will spend a week with the Arsenal players in August, giving them instruction in physical training based on the most modern lines. "I believe that in these hectic days the psychological side of sport has a very distinct bearing on the results achieved. It is not sufficient for a man to play football in a purely physical sense. He has got to train his mentality to it and use his brain to figure out the cause and effect."

INSPIRATION

"If home surroundings and home comforts can inspire a team to greater efforts and instill into their minds a greater determination for success, then I am sure that the Arsenal Stadium will be an inspiration."

Our Daily Golf Hint

Swing rather upright for an explosive shot out of a bunker. Keep the head still and tear into the sand at the back of the ball. Don't try to follow through.

London, Aug. 19.

Eight matches were played in the first division of the Scottish Football League to-day, with one or two surprising results.

Celtic visited St. Johnstone and went down by the odd goal while Third Lanark upset Kilmarnock on the latter's ground by three clear goals.

Rangers entertained Dundee and won in a canter, but Aberdeen, before their own supporters, could do no better than a draw with Hibernian.

How England Retained The Davis Cup

HURRICANE PERRY WILTS CRAWFORD

Quist's Grand Win

(By H. S. Scrivener)

By 7.40 yesterday evening Great Britain had won the Davis Cup for the fourth year in succession. It was F. J. Perry who rose in his wrath, after his team-mate, H. W. Austin, had gone down to A. K. Quist and put us in jeopardy, to beat his old rival, J. H. Crawford, by 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

He treated us, when we were beginning to dither, to a priceless exhibition of the greatest living exponent. He is par excellence the man who seems able to crash the ball whenever he wants to in a manner which leaves such a commensurate artist as Crawford powerless.

As a matter of fact, Crawford played finely, but not finely enough. In the first set Perry pipped him twice on his service, and was out at 6-2. He was up on him again in the very first game of the second set with the aid of a rather lucky net-corder to take him out at 6-3.

The third set was even more rapid than the second. Perry again got his service lead early, and went gallily to 5-0, but dropped three games after having a match point in the eighth.

It was, indeed, to hark back to the time-honoured poem, a glorious victory, since the elect of Australia are men of real might.

QUIST'S PLAY

The defeat of Austin by Quist emphasised the fact that the Australian is a really fine player. He has all the virtues—accuracy, aggressiveness, the ability to make all the strokes on the board and retrieving powers, which are at times quite phenomenal. I put his volleying in the van of his accomplishments.

All the same I do not think that Austin should have lost that match; his play from the point of view of what we have a right to expect of him was disappointing. As compared with Quist, he was insecure off the ground, was almost beaten in duel of base-line driving and (as against Crawford on Saturday) was the less powerful server.

As things went he ought unquestionably to have staked his all on volleying, which was fine when he gave it a chance. But he was chary of taking risks, because he was passed now and again, and that is where he slipped up.

He was a bit unlucky to lose the first set, in which he was quite good, by dropping his service after leading 6-3. He won his service for 6-3 on the resumption and had a healthy chance of winning the third set—in which he held the service (Continued on Page 9.)

Yesterday's doubles was not a great one. There were too many short lobs by both sides.

Quist was the most consistent player of the four, and Tuckey not far behind. I liked Tuckey's aggressiveness, his never flinched in making his returns, his interceptions were good, and he served magnificently.

Much of the patchy play was because the battle was so grim. Britain had the advantage of serving first in all four sets. But when Hughes lost the first game of the match to 0, and Quist winning his service for a 2-0 lead, the Australians never looked like losing that set. In the second set the Englishmen were on top all the way, capturing Quist's service twice and Crawford's once.

The third set went with the service for ten games, when Hughes again lost a love game, to put Australia ahead to 6-5.

It was left to the fourth and last set to provide the thrills. Attacking splendidly, Hughes and Tuckey went to 2-5. Then for the next four games Crawford played inspired tennis, and with Quist holding his own they pushed the English score at 6-6.

Here Quist faltered, and the Englishmen drew level at 6-all and led by the odd game to 8-7.

Australia levelled at 8-all, and, discarding their tentative lobbing, sent over some lovely returns which carried them to victory.

REBELS SUFFER REVERSES

PUSHED BACK FROM IRUN

Loyalists Claim Big Navalperal Victory

SIX HEAVY GUNS TAKEN FROM INSURGENTS

Hendaye, Aug. 20.

In the course of a terrific battle, the Spanish Government forces have forced back the insurgents in the Irun sector and have even regained some of their lost territory.

GUNS CAPTURED

Madrid, Aug. 20.

The Government claims a big success at Navalperal, on the Guadarrama front, where General Mangada is reported to have captured six of the rebels' heavy guns and many prisoners.

It is stated the insurgents lost 500 casualties in killed and wounded.—Reuter.

EXPECT BIG BATTLE

Hendaye, Aug. 19.

The fights for Irun and San Sebastian, likely to produce the greatest battle since the Spanish civil war's commencement, commenced to-day with the occupation by insurgents of positions on the mountain heights overlooking the first named city. At one point only 200 yards separate the rival forces. General Mola, commander of the northern rebel army, is personally directing the assault.

A thousand militiamen from Bilbao have arrived at Irun to reinforce the Government forces there, while it is reported that hundreds of foreign volunteers, many of them expert machine-gunners, have arrived at San Sebastian to assist the Government forces in the defence of the city.

Meanwhile the flight of refugees continues, in steadily increasing numbers. Over 600 women and children crossed the frontier during to-day, but men of all ages remained behind to support the Popular Front party. Other refugees are "squatting" on the Spanish side of the frontier, ready to leave at once if the battle extends as far as the border.—Reuter.

9,000 In Battle

Hendaye, Aug. 10.

Some 9,000 men are participating in the battle for Irun, which the insurgent forces are attacking.

The rebels, by night, advanced by a driblet to the hill on which Irun's fortifications are situated, only 600 yards from the city itself. Here the attackers captured a Government artillery battery, despite the shell-fire from a Government torpedo-boat on a nearby river.

Hundreds of refugees from Irun have fled across the frontier into France.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

Rebels Repulsed

Madrid, Aug. 19.

It is authoritatively stated that loyalists repulsed a rebel attack in the vicinity of Naval, in North Spain, with 500 casualties.—United Press.

Grim Threats

San Sebastian, Aug. 10.

Loyalists here indicate they are prepared to blow up Fort Guadalupe, with more than 1,500 alleged rebel sympathisers imprisoned there, if the assault on the city by the insurgent forces continues.

A sergeant of the garrison, interviewed by a United Press correspondent, gave the distinct impression that he and his comrades were prepared to "blow up the stores of" (Continued on Page 7.)

LOYALIST REPRISALS EXPECTED

FOR SHELLING OF SAN SEBASTIAN

Madrid, Aug. 20.

A spokesman of the Government declared to-day that all restrictions had been released "after hearing how women and children had died at San Sebastian."

The Government was convinced, he said, that it was facing a desperate enemy which did not recognise the rules of war.

The announcement seemed a signal for a loyalist outburst near Medelin, where 20 war planes machine-gunned and bombed 4,000 rebels, including Foreign Legionaries.

The Madrid spokesman said that thus far the loyalists had attempted to save the priceless buildings and relics of the old cities where rebels were sheltering, and had refrained from bombing Saragossa, Toledo, Oviedo, Cordoba and Granada. But the news from San Sebastian and Madrid revealed the desperation of the insurgents. It is stated, and may lead to the destruction of the rebel positions in the cities mentioned.

A search of the Bishop's Palace has yielded a fortune worth $235,354 (U.S.). In jewellery, bonds and cash. The new arrests include J. Hernandez de la Puente, ex-Mayor of Madrid.

The death of General Leonildo Saro, member of Senor Primo Rivera's dictatorship, is announced.—United Press.

BERLIN TAKING SERIOUS VIEW

Berlin, Aug. 19.

The German steamer Kamerun, bound for Genoa with refugees from Spain, was fired on and searched by a Spanish Government cruiser, the Libertad, according to an official German news agency despatch.

Three shots were fired by the cruiser to compel the Kamerun to halt. The vessel was then searched by a party from a Spanish Government submarine.

The incident occurred seven and a half miles off the coast of Cadiz.

SERIOUS VIEW

Berlin, Aug. 19.

The hold-up of the German steamer Kamerun, by a Spanish Government cruiser, while the vessel was carrying refugees from Spain to Genoa, is regarded as a serious matter in competent German circles.

Three shots were fired to compel the Kamerun to halt, whereafter a submarine's party searched her.

It is stated that the incident will be the subject of an energetic protest.

It is pointed out that the stopping of a German vessel by gunfire outside Spanish territorial waters constitutes a violation of international law.—Reuter Special.

DESTROYER UNDER FIRE

London, Aug. 19.

The British destroyer Blanche, which is in the vicinity of Melilla, was bombed on Monday by aeroplanes belonging to the insurgent forces in Spain, in mistake for the Spanish destroyer leader Jose Luis Diez. Fortunately the British warship escaped damage.

Immediately afterwards, the British authorities received apologies from the rebel leaders, who, in expressing their regret, offered an explanation that the Blanche was mistaken for a Spanish destroyer.—British Wireless.

GERMANY INDIGNANT

Berlin, Aug. 20.

An official news agency reports the cruiser Libertad and the submarine H-8, after firing three times across the bows of the steamer Kamerun, halted and searched the German vessel.

The Kamerun was en route to Cadiz to evacuate neutrals, and though she was later allowed to proceed she was not permitted to call at Cadiz.

It is believed this action may lead to reprisals.

Morning papers refer to the incident as "a flagrant violation of international law." They call the loyalist sailors "pirates, buccanniers and freebooters," indicating they chose their terms deliberately in order to brand as outlaws those responsible for the halting of the Kamerun.—United Press.

MYSTERIOUS FIRES IN U.S. NAVAL YARDS

Quincy, Mass., Aug. 20.

For the seventh time in a few months, a serious fire has occurred in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's naval shipbuilding yards here.

The latest incident has occurred aboard the U.S.S. Vincennes, a cruiser now under construction.

The fire, which was possibly caused by a short circuit in the electrical installation, started in the handling room of one of the turrets. Firemen were not able to get it under control until damage estimated at $25,000 had been caused. Most of the damage was to the recently installed electric cabling.

In addition to the seven outbreaks of fire recorded at the dockyards in the past few months, it is recalled that just over twelve months ago, on August 6, 1935, a fire aboard the U.S.S. Quincy caused damage estimated at $150,000.—United Press.

MANNING BARRICADES IN MADRID CLASHES

Thousands of supporters of the Popular Front Government, including women, as the illustration shows, manned the barricades in Madrid to fight the Fascist snipers and raiding parties at the outbreak of the insurrection. The Madrid Popular Front patriots may be called upon to man their barriers for a more serious conflict if General Mola's and General Franco's armies succeed in smashing through the outer defences of the capital and reaching the heart of the Leftist Government.

RUSSIANS CONFESS TO PLOT

SOUGHT DEATH OF STALIN ANTI-GERMAN ALLEGATION

Moscow, Aug. 20.

I. I. Rengold, one of the defendants in the group charged with plotting against the life of the dictator, Stalin, testified to-day that Alexis Rykov, Commissar for Communications, Nikolai Bukharin, editor of Izvestia, Michael Tomsky, head of the state publishers, Gregory Sokolnikov, former Ambassador to Great Britain, and endorsed Stalin's assassination in 1932 as "the only way to cleanse the Government."

Sokolnikov was immediately arrested.

Zinoviev and Kamenev, with fourteen others, are those on trial before the military tribunal.

It is expected that the prosecution will charge the German Secret police (Gestapo) with participation in a plot to restore Trotsky to power.

The German Embassy, however, has declined to send an observer to the trial, though one of the defendants, Fritz David, is reportedly a German, who was allegedly detailed to shoot Stalin.

Other Russian leaders marked with death included K. E. Voroshilov, Commissar for Defence, C. K. Ordjonikidze, Commissar for Heavy Industry, and L. M. Kaganovitch, of the Union Central Executive Committee.

Asked if they would admit their guilt, Zinoviev, in a subdued voice, said, "Yes." Kamenev replied: "Yes, I fully admit everything."

EDEN CONFERS ON SPANISH CRISIS CALLS LABOUR CHIEFS TO FOREIGN OFFICE

London, Aug. 19.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, acting leader of the Opposition, Mr. Middleton, Secretary of the Labour Party, and Sir Walter Citrine, Secretary of the Trades Congress, called at the Foreign Office to-day and interviewed Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, on the present situation in Spain.

The nature of the proceedings has not been disclosed, but the visit may be connected with the Labour and Liberal campaign for the re-summoning of Parliament at the earliest possible moment.—Reuter.

NEUTRALITY PRESERVED

London, Aug. 19.

British neutrality in the Spanish civil war was further evidenced to-day when the Board of Trade revoked all licences previously granted for the export of all descriptions of arms, ammunition, aircraft, etc.

The order applies to Spain, Spanish possessions and the Spanish zone in Morocco.—Reuter.

London, Aug. 19.

"We are strengthening our defences in order to prevent a world war, and if our programme is fully carried out we shall succeed in our determination," declared Sir Samuel Hoare, First Lord of the Admiralty, speaking at Cromer to-day.

Regarding the Spanish civil war, Sir Samuel said the Government had not the least intention of interfering with Spain's internal affairs. He pointed out that the British Navy's measures for the protection of Britons and others in that country had resulted in the evacuation of 3,500 men, women and children, of whom 2,000 were British.—Reuter.

SHARES ANXIETY

London, Aug. 19.

It is authoritatively learned that Signor Benito Mussolini has assured Britain that Italy shares her anxiety to prevent a spread of the Spanish rebellion into a European conflagration.

Count Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, is reported to have given an assurance that Italy will not attempt, and does not desire, any arrangement with the Spanish rebels regarding the future status of Morocco or the Balearic Islands.—United Press.

AVOIDING COMPLICATIONS

Rome, Aug. 19.

It is authoritatively stated that Signor Mussolini believes that Italian intervention in Spain would be the precursor of a European upheaval, paving the way to Communism when (Continued on Page 7.)

Jim Braddock Cannot Fight In September

New York, Aug. 19.

Blasting all hopes that Jim Braddock, world's heavyweight boxing champion, can be matched against Max Schmeling in September, Dr. Fred Albee reported to the New York Boxing Commission to-day that the fighter is suffering from acute, infectious arthritis in his left hand and both elbows.

Dr. Albee does not recommend an operation, but said that the treatment would require five weeks and would prevent heavy training.

Schmeling, earlier, had sportingly commiserated with Braddock, telling him he was prepared to wait to meet him, though the fight was scheduled for next month.—United Press.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK READY TO MOVE FIRST CLASH REPORTED

Canton, Aug. 20.

Official sources confirm the report that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has sent a further ultimatum to Generals Li Chung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi, allowing them a few more days to leave Kwangsi.

Meanwhile, Marshal Chiang has telegraphed Nanking asking for a mandate for dealing with Kwangsi's rebels and consequently the orders for a punitive expedition are expected shortly.—Reuter.

FIRST CLASH

Shanghai, Aug. 20.

The Chinese press reports that a clash has occurred between Nanking and Kwangsi troops at Lotung, south-east of Wuchow and twenty miles inside Kwangtung.—United Press.

VICTORY ASSURED

Shanghai, Aug. 20.

Those best acquainted with the military realities of the present situation have been most appreciative of the patience of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek in the face of the Kwangsi leaders' defiant attitude.

Foreign military experts consider the Central Government is assured of victory in a civil war which, perhaps, may be inevitable. The difficulties of pacifying the Kwangsi mountaineers are undeniable.

Reports from Nanning and elsewhere to the effect that Kwangsi has made an alliance with Moscow or the Third Internationale, are viewed here with a certain scepticism.

It appears to be confirmed, however, that the Kwangsi chiefs have succeeded in enlisting the personal support of certain leaders of the abortive Fokien revolt of 1933, including General Tsai Ting-kai and General Li Chai-sun, the former a veteran of the Shanghai fighting with the 10th Route Army, the latter the leader of the so-called People's Government of Fokien. The 10th Route Army defected from the Fokien rebel Government in its last futile stand, until Marshal Chiang Kai-shek bombed it out of existence.

Chinese and foreign business men and diplomats to-day studied official translations of Marshal Chiang's address on the occasion of the induction of the new Kwangtung officials, when the leader promised the Cantonese a "New Deal" in party, political and financial affairs. Marshal Chiang stressed the necessity of eradicating the political corruption in Kwangtung and the suppression of the opium and gambling evils, and also the avoidance of Government (Continued on Page 7.)

CURTAINS

Treat them like pictures and—

Says JOHN BETJEMAN

THE train takes me past many miles of houses every day. From the windows various curtains flutter like Monday's washing—brown and dingy, orange and arty, pink and sickly. There's never much variation. You would think people didn't care what their windows looked like so long as they let in plenty of light.

Inside effects

IN Georgian days, just over a century ago, when people knew more about decoration and architecture than they do now, windows were treated like valuable pictures. They were carefully framed—but then there were more views to be seen from windows. The windows were not decorated with curtains whose chief effect was, external. The architect saw to it that they looked well proportioned in a house.

If you have a large, high window, or a French window, which it is a pleasure to look at, then you must make something of the view, so that it becomes a huge picture on the wall as well as a hasty escape into the garden when some one you don't want to see comes to call.

You can make the window look well with a compact frame of curtains. When choosing stuffs for French windows remember that the larger the pattern and the heavier the material the better the effect.

Heavy material keeps the sun from overheating the room in summer and keeps house warm in winter. There are many fadeless fabrics obtainable for curtains. Choose a pattern that will not irritate you after a time with its so-called "modernity." The old flower patterns or plain fabrics with a wide border are better than most. There are some excellent new patterns produced now, and revivals of old ones.

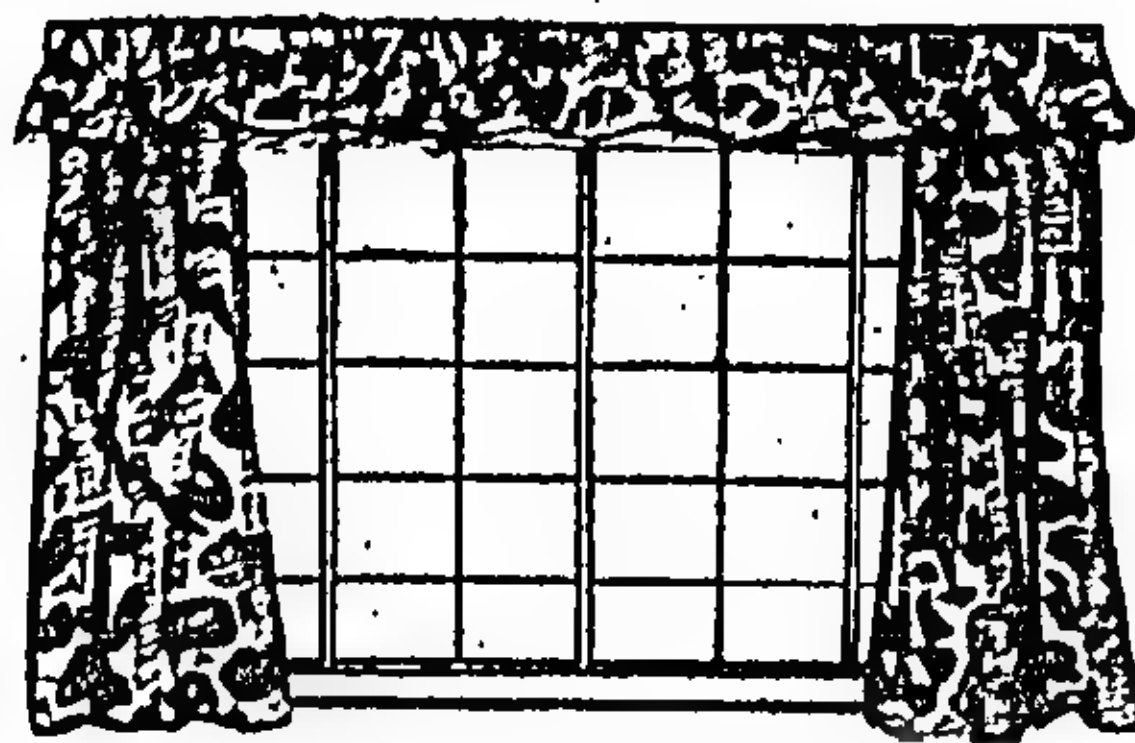

Take care

THOUGH it sounds a little wild, very bold rich colours are best for heavy curtains to big windows—scarlet, crimson, blue, bright primrose yellow. The patterns you select for your curtains will probably look very different from how you see them in the shop unless you take this precaution. Hold the fabric up to the light and try to imagine how it will appear when the sun is striking through it. See it in artificial light and notice whether the colours change. Greens are often susceptible to electric light and vary strangely.

Fashions

OR small windows in bedrooms and bathrooms choose small patterns. Glazed chimneys with old-fashioned patterns of little roses or coral look well. You can make a small curtain quite tractable and wind-resisting by lining it with duck, which is a mixture of wool and cotton. Duck keeps out the light when the curtains are drawn. Do not use a valance or pelmet in a small window. It takes off too much light during the day.

How not to arrange your curtains. Pattern is too large for small windows; pelmet keeps out the light.

A better way. Plain curtains and no pelmet. Curtain rod extends beyond window to give maximum amount of light.

Hold fast

HAVE the curtain rod made a quarter as long again as the window frame. Fix it an inch above the frame and let the ends which project beyond the window be fixed into the wall.

The best method of doing this is to nail or plug a piece of wood on to the wall (paint the wood the same colour as the wall, if you like). The wood must project so far from the wall surface that the rod can be fixed on to it (either by a nail or screw) without bending.

You will now be able to draw back the curtains further from the window.

Curains can be fastened two inches in the case of three-foot curtains and four inches in the case of large curtains, below the top.

Importance

DO not advise your going in too much for patent ways of drawing curtains. It is annoying if you want to keep the light off an object to the wall (paint the wood the same colour as the wall, if you like). The wood must project so far from the wall surface that the rod can be fixed on to it (either by a nail or screw) without bending.

Windows are really big and important pictures on your walls. See to it that the pattern they show at night is as good or better than window.

Girls' and Boys' Corner

Your FIRST MODEL YACHT ...

How to Build It—and the Tools Required

MANY boys long to build a model yacht but do not know how to begin or what tools are required. Here, then, is a simple design for a boat which can be made very easily.

You will need a large pocket-knife, a chisel, a small iron plane, a 1/2-inch gouge and a spokeshave; a screw-driver, a light hammer, and a saw will also be useful.

Do not attempt too big a boat at first, the one shown on the diagram is 24 inches long, 8 inches wide, and 2 1/2 inches deep, without the keel. Get a piece of soft, knotless yellow-pine, and mark out the deck-plan (see Fig. 11), then, to save trouble, saw off the corners. With your big pocket-knife, chisel and spokeshave, cut out the boat to the shape shown on Figs. 3, 4, 9 and 11. Then, using your gouge, hollow out the hull, as shown on Fig. 4.

The Wooden Fin

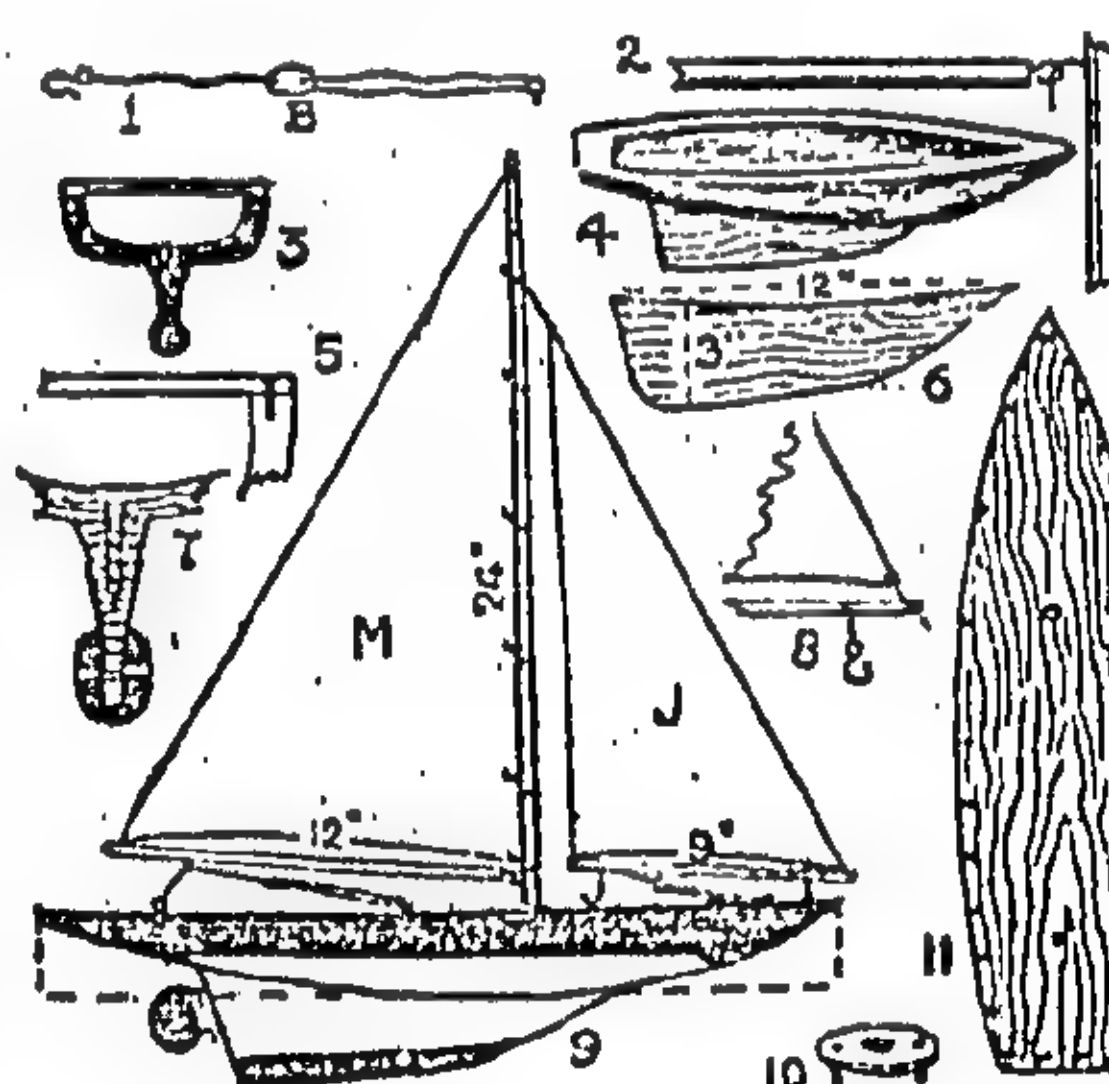

To the bottom of the hull (body) a wooden fin must be fitted. This is shown on Figs. 6, 7 and 9. Taper the wood, making it thick at the top and thin at the bottom (see Fig. 7), and screw it to the boat with fine screws inserted (from inside the hull) as shown. Having hollowed out the hull, give the inside two coats of varnish, and fit a lead "step" for the heel of the mast (see Fig. 10), then get a piece of fretwork wood for the deck (see Fig. 11).

Brass Screws Needed

Fasten the deck over the hull with small, fine, brass screws, in the manner shown on Fig. 5; stop the seam with gold-size putty. Now plane and glass-paper the hull. To the bottom of the wooden fin a lead keel, weighing 8 or 4lb., must be attached. To save melting, you could use several thicknesses of sheet lead, fitted as shown on Figs. 7 and 9. Fasten this with screws or brass heel-nails (clinch).

The main-sail (M) and the jib (J) should be made of fine longcloth and hemmed—always keep the selvage at the after side of each sail. Make your mast and the spars at the foot of each sail of light wood. Shape them with spokeshave and plane, then glass-paper, then well before varnishing. Copal varnish, two or three coats, should be used for spars and deck. Fig. 2 shows how the mainsail boom (spar) is attached to the mast, and Fig. 1 the tackle for adjusting the sails—B is a small "bowser." Fig. 8 shows how the jib (J) is fastened.

Having thoroughly glass-papered the boat, give her one coat of priming and two coats of paint.

Now your yacht is ready for her exciting maiden voyage at the nearest beach.

SALESMAN SAM

will solve a tiresome dress problem

ALTHOUGH white on black is so smart and business-like when clean, it spells your whole appearance once its freshness has worn off. Of course, the ideal would be to have a set for every day—one always intends to have this when the outfit is new, but somehow each pay-day brings more urgent demands, and the extra set is never purchased.

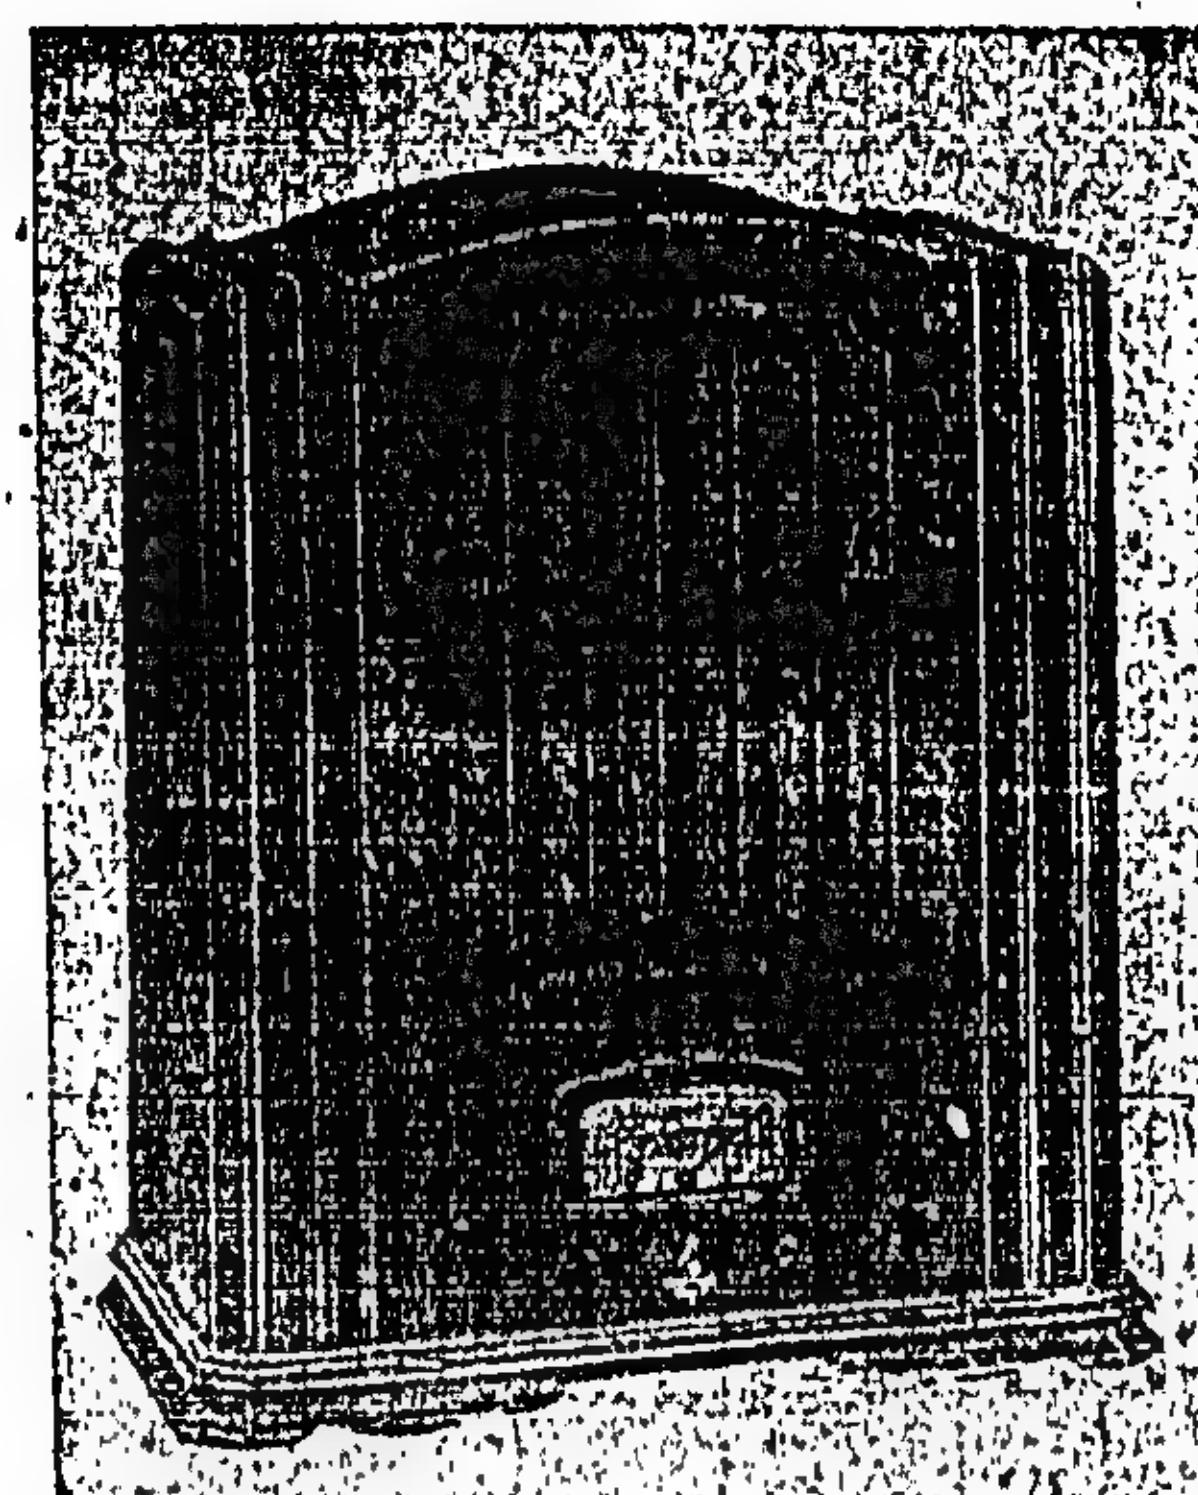

Do not despair—you hard-worked business girls, who wash your collars and cuffs overnight, and iron and sew on again before breakfast the next morning, the latest idea is to make yourselves a "two-way" reversible set.

It is perfectly simple. In pique, cloque or linen—organdie does not lend itself to the scheme—choose a fat design (no frills) cut it out double, and be careful to finish off both sides alike.

Collars and cuffs never get really dirty on the under side, and if made in this way can be taken off and worn reversed as soon as the top side shows signs of grubbiness.

Pique is very accommodating, and one side can be worn for two days without fear of offending the most immaculate chief; then the other side for two days.

"AIR RAID TERROR CAN BE CHECKED"

Professor, ex-R.A.F. Pilot, Claims He Has Perfect Defence Plan

A Moscow street has been provided with this box which leaves no doubt as to its contents.

Schoolgirl

HAS GAMES, BOY FRIENDS

Peggy Anne

SAYS GOODBYE

New York, Aug. 15.
A SCHOOLGIRL flapper, accustomed only to playing games and indulging in mild flirtations, is destined between now and November to play one of the most important parts in an attempt to dialogue President Franklin Roosevelt from Washington's White House.

Her name? Peggy Anne Landon, part nineteen-year-old daughter of Governor Alf Landon, big business candidate in the presidential fight against America's New Deal.

MISSING GLAMOUR
Republicans are very satisfied with their choice of a candidate, but they freely admit there is nothing about him to excite the youth of the nation. True, he rides, fishes, likes football, but he is essentially an old school politician. He has none of the flashiness and glamour of Mr. Roosevelt.

Hopefully the Republican organizers went to Mrs. Landon to provide some light-hearted relief to dry, hard facts. She refused to have anything to do with the campaign.

Then some one had an inspiration. Why not Peggy Anne?

So Peggy Anne has been plucked from her games, affairs of the heart, and school books to help her father to reach the White House—to provide the sex appeal part of his campaign.

She is well qualified, striking looking, with large dark eyes that make her look much more serious than her years.

Miss Landon's face has an Oriental cast similar to that of film actress Merle Oberon. She makes a good picture, and is already getting used to seeing herself in the newspapers.

SHE IS WEARY
But already Peggy is weary. The reason is that she cannot have her boy friends.

She went to the Republican convention in Cleveland with the highest hopes; excitedly she imagined all the dates she was going to have, but the chairman of the Republican Party said "no" firmly. "No dates for Miss Landon, she must be impartial."

Her fan mail grew overnight from nil to hundreds. There were "crush" notes from impressionable young college boys who would like to buy her ice-cream cones at college hops.

Every day she gets more and more such letters, but her secretary—yes, she has a secretary now—writes prim little refusals to all the invitations that Peggy Anne would just love to accept.

Miss Landon is not quite a seasoned politician yet. In one of her first mass interviews with reporters she opened with: "I just can't imagine my father in White House," and under her arm she carried a copy of "It can't happen here." But now she is getting used to being deprived of her love affairs, sitting on platforms, posing for photographers. That's all she will do between now and November.

SAVED BY MONTH IN OXYGEN TENT

Little ten-year-old Annie Elverson, of Westminster, has made a remarkable recovery after a major lung operation performed in Westminster Hospital, where she has been a patient for five months.

So critical was her condition at one time after the operation, which was of a nature rarely attempted, that it was necessary to keep her in an oxygen tent for a month. She left hospital recently.

ROBOT PLANES TO CRASH BOMBERS

Oxford, Aug. 10.
GREAT interest has been aroused here by the statement of Professor F. A. Lindemann, experimental R.A.F. pilot in the war, that he has devised the perfect air defence plan.

Professor Lindemann is contesting the University by-election caused by the impending resignation of Lord Hugh Cecil.

He will stand as National Government Conservative, and he is basing his election appeal on his "Knowledge and experience of aeronautical matters."

In a circular letter to the 22,000 University electors, he states:

"To-day, when aerial bombardment threatens our very national existence, I believe I have a very real contribution to bring to our country. I have along maintained that it should be possible to defend our coastline and to prevent by other means than mere reprisals any enemy planes from bombing our cities."

RADIO CRASHERS

"To develop some form of defence on these lines is my main objective." From inquiries made it is understood that the Professor is working on the following principles:

A chain of wire "snare aprons," suspended from balloons in the cloud 30,000 feet up; Squadrons of Queen Bees piloted, radio-controlled aeroplanes to fly head-on at raiding planes.

Thus the coastline could be adequately defended by a chain of balloons supporting wire aprons and squadrons of Queen Bees patrolling in front of the aprons and controlled by radio from the balloons.

Travelling at 250 m.p.h., the Queen Bees would be sent head-on at raiding planes.

HIS PROPERTY

Calgary (Alberta), Aug. 15.
In quest of a great reservoir of oil, drillers have bored within a quarter of a mile of King Edward's "E. P. ranch," 60 miles from here.

The diamond drills, biting deeply into the limestone, soaked with naphtha gas, are expected to strike at any moment.

As reported in The Daily Telegraph last month, it is believed that the main field of rich oil lies under the northern area of the King's 3,000-acre estate. His Majesty has sole oil and mineral rights on the ranch, which he holds on a special 99-years lease.

The lease was obtained by the King, then Prince of Wales, from the Alberta Government by an Order in Council five years ago. No contracts for drilling or exploration can be sub-let.

Any operations would have to be carried out by his Majesty or his managers. The prospect of such enterprises being undertaken has never been discussed by the King, it is authoritatively stated here. No person other than the King or his agents may drill within 600ft. of the boundaries of the estate.

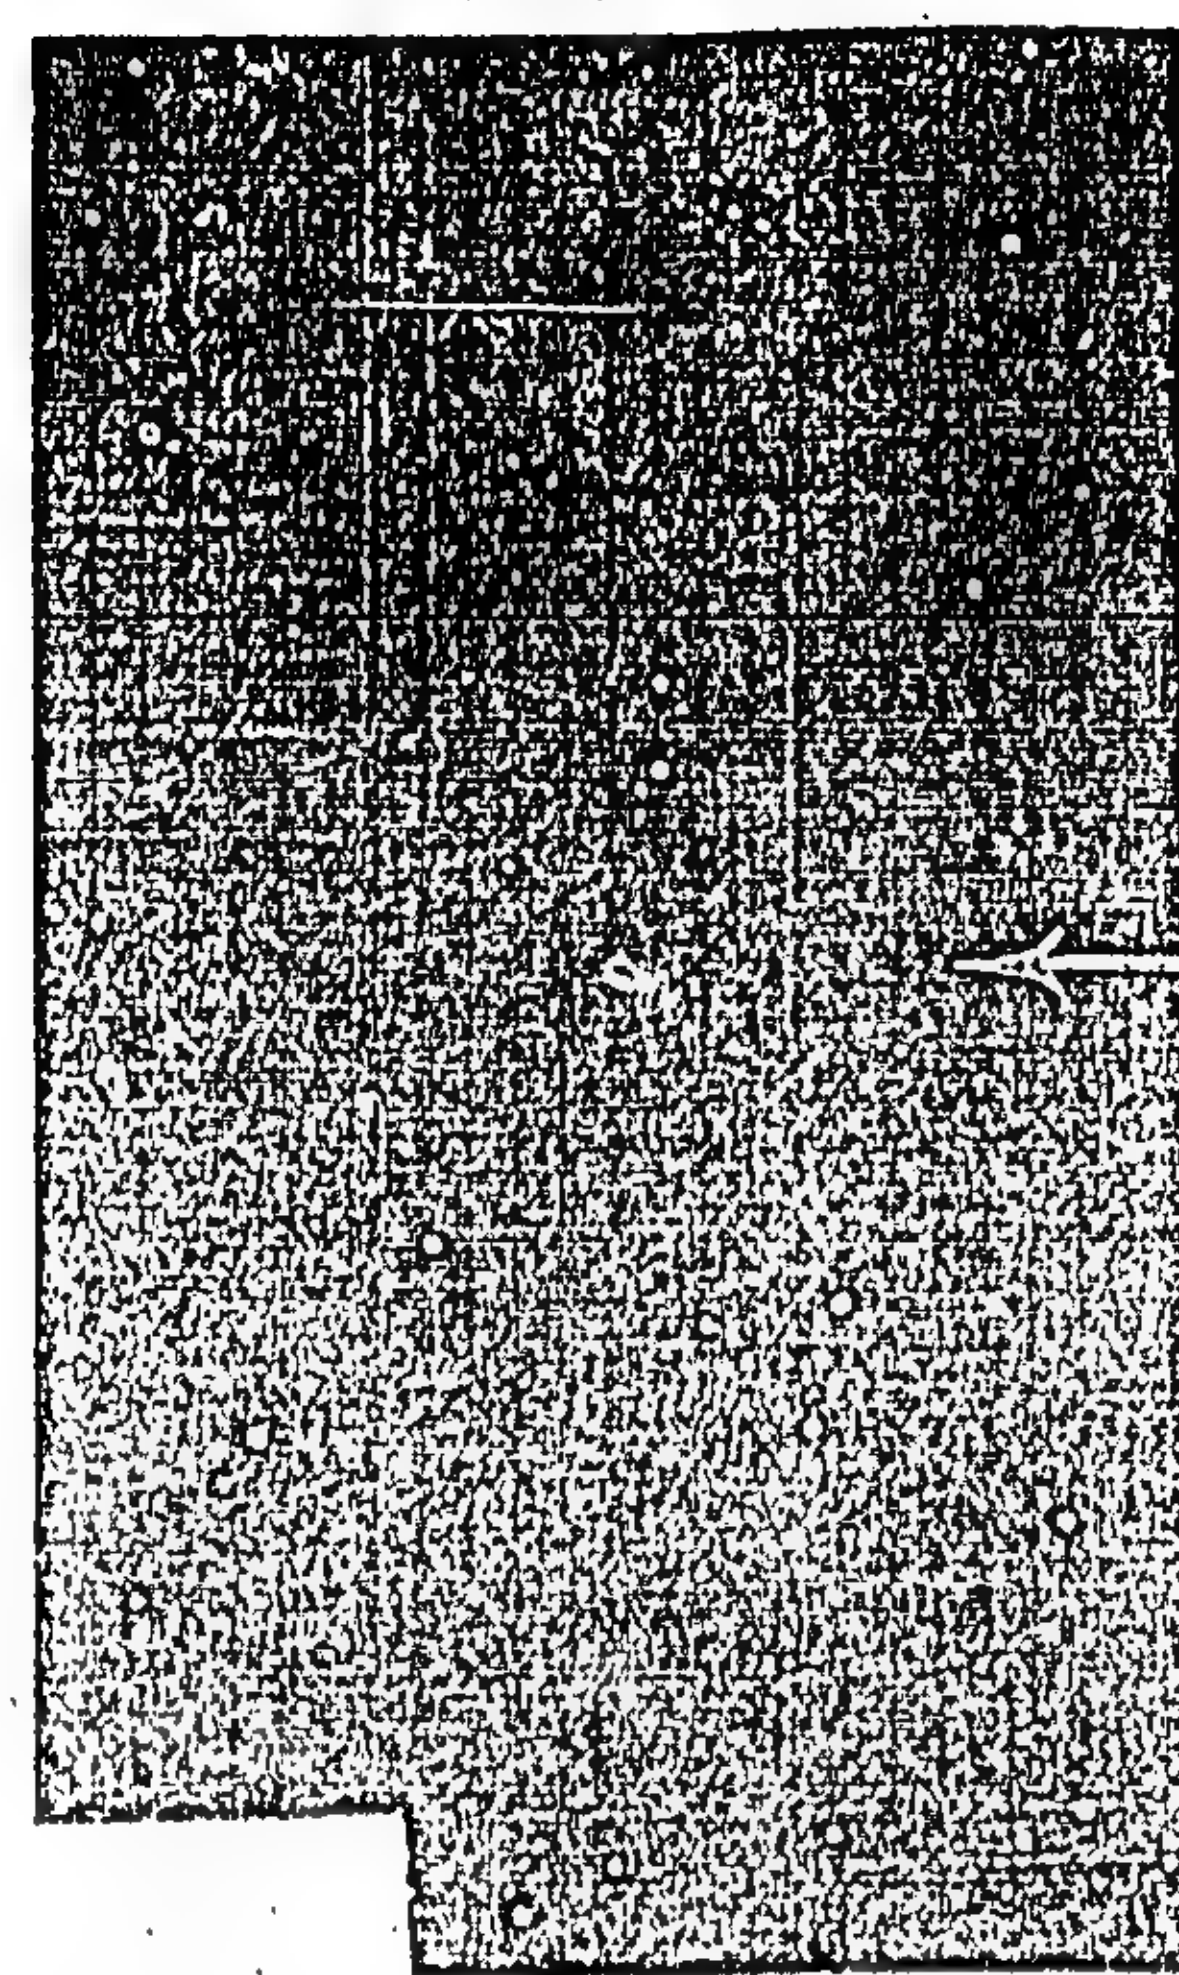

Unless, therefore, the main oilfield is struck before this limit is reached the operators of the present boring will have failed in their chief object. The search for the great oilfield believed by experts to exist in the neighbourhood follows the "blowing in" of a 900 barrels a day crude oil well in the Turner Valley last month. This is about five miles from the northern boundary of the Royal ranch.

The strike, one of the richest in recent years, has been followed by others. Scores of other big producers have dotted the Turner Valley field with naphtha gas flows.

Pekisko Well No. 1 is now in gas-producing formation, and a real strike is expected shortly. Only a quarter of a mile away from the King's ranch other big wells are nearing production stage.

PIT OWNERS' COUNSEL ALLEGES PERJURY

Mr. Hartley Shawcross in his concluding speech for the owners at the last day of the Gresford inquiry spoke of the evidence of 13 men with regard to stone-dusting just before an inspector's visit in one of the districts as "concerted perjury."

"A lie is a lie, and this seems to have been a perfectly deliberate and concerted lie by 13 of the important witnesses called to give evidence with regard to conditions in the district," he said.

"The suggestion that this disaster had its source and its origin in the bottom end of the pit is simply part and parcel of a malicious attempt to cast discredit upon the owners," declared Mr. Shawcross.

Mr. Hall: You will prove that, I hope.

Mr. Shawcross said that unfortunately, at this stage, it was not possible to prove with certainty where the explosion did occur, although one could establish with reasonable certainty certain places where it could have occurred.

OWNERS' THEORIES

The Commissioner (Sir Henry Walker) said he appreciated the theories put forward by Mr. Shawcross as to the cause of the disaster.

"Whether I will be able to deal with those theories I do not know," he said. "My present opinion is that I am disinclined to do so."

Sir Henry and his assessors will now prepare their report. Despite the formidable mass of evidence, all of which has had to be taken down by official shorthand reporters and transcribed, it is believed that the cost of the inquiry will not prove in any way comparable to many protracted litigations in the courts.

Sir Stafford Cripps, K.C., who appeared for the Mineworkers' Federation and attended upon more than 25 days of the inquiry gave his services for nothing and paid all his own expenses.

He was assisted by two juniors, Mr. Geoffrey Wilson and Mr. Arthur Henderson. The cost of the court itself will be borne by the Government, each side bearing its own expenses for the remainder.

'Fantastic' Divorce
Methods

Birmingham, Aug. 12.
POINTED comments with regard to observation kept on a house were made by Mr. Justice Swift in a divorce case at Birmingham Assizes to-day.

A decree nisi was granted to Mr. Frederick Houghton, of Hall Green, Birmingham, who alleged that his wife had lived with the co-respondent, Stanley Hardy, at a house at Selly Park, Birmingham.

When it was stated that observation was kept on the house by four people and that two ladders were used, Mr. Justice Swift remarked: "A regular scaling party."

Later he said: "I should have thought it was so simple to have proved this couple were living together without going all through this fantastic business of putting up ladders to people's windows at three o'clock in the morning."

He added: "There seems to have been some sort of collusion between those in the house and those outside." Mr. Fennimore (for Mr. Houghton): With respect, I don't think so, my lord.

Costs were refused, Mr. Justice Swift stating that he thoroughly disapproved of Mr. Houghton and his agent in the case.

B.M.A. TO STOP DOCTORS' "RACKET"

THE British Medical Association intends to take vigorous measures to stamp out an alleged "racket" by doctors.

It has warned general practitioners against the practice of advising patients to call in a specialist where such a consultation is unnecessary.

In such cases, the doctor draws a commission, or a share of the specialist's fee, as a reward for introducing the client.

There is a grave suspicion that numerous doctors have working arrangements with specialists, whereby they obtain a "rake-off" for every patient sent along.

In the language of the profession, this practice is known as dichotomy, and the B.M.A. has informed doctors that it is not only unethical but illegal. "Any practitioner who is convicted before the courts of this offence," it says, "will inevitably come within the penal jurisdiction of the council."

CLEAR HINT
That is a clear hint that he will be struck off the medical register, and debarred from future practice.

The association points out that under the Prevention of Corruption Act, dichotomy is a misdemeanour punishable with two years' imprisonment or a fine of £500, or both.

It is added that not only the general practitioner who introduces a patient, but a specialist who gives him a share to the fee are liable to be punished.

Why Should I Not Be Irish?

—Asks G.B.S.

George Bernard Shaw, who was 80 last month, confided on his birthday why he has just registered himself and his wife, Charlotte Frances Shaw, as citizens of the Irish Free State.

"Well, I am Irish, am I not? I mean, I was born in Ireland, I married an Irish wife and she understood she was marrying an Irish husband. Now that we have the opportunity of taking our own citizenship, why shouldn't we do it?"

"I only recently heard about the Nationality Act."

TO EDUCATE LONDON

G. B. S. first went to London in 1876 and lived in a street in St. Pancras; for six years he was vestryman and sat on the Borough Council for St. Pancras.

After he had been sent to London a few years, he is reported to have said: "My destiny was to educate London, but I had neither studied my pupil nor related my ideas properly to the common stock of human knowledge."

Mr. Shaw's Irish registration does not affect his status as a British subject.

DIVORCE PROBLEM OF WIFE WITH HUSBAND ABROAD Court No Jurisdiction In Her Petition

THE problem of a wife, who married in England, and wished to divorce her husband, who had adopted the United States as his permanent home, was discussed by Mr. Justice Bucknill in a reserved judgment recently.

He held that the Divorce Court had no jurisdiction to make a decree of dissolution of the marriage.

In a petition of November, 1934, Mrs. May Herd, of Loughdon, Essex, asked for the dissolution of her marriage to Albert William Herd on the ground of his alleged adultery.

NEW YORK DOMICILE
In March, 1923, Mr. Herd left his wife and went to the United States. The Solicitor-General (Sir Terence O'Connor, K.C.), for the King's Proctor, contended that Mr. Herd had acquired a domicile in New York.

He wrote in 1934: "I have no present intention of returning to Great Britain."

Mr. Herd became an American citizen in December, 1930, and admitted living with a woman in New York. He had adopted the United States as his permanent home.

Mr. Justice Bucknill held that, at the time the petition was filed, the husband was domiciled in the United States, and had lost his domicile of origin in England.

The rule of law was that the domicile of the husband was the domicile of the wife.

Tigers Besiege Chinese Village

Shanghai, Aug. 10.

In a single month over 60 Chinese have been devoured by tigers who make daily raids upon Hsienwenhsien, a village in Kwangtung.

Owing to a lack of adequate weapons with which to defend themselves, the inhabitants lock themselves behind strongly-barred doors each afternoon between the hours of one and five, which is the "feeding time" for the wild beasts.

The district government has offered a $50 reward for each tiger killed, but most of the villagers have become so accustomed to harrying themselves in their homes during the animals' visiting hours that no losses to the local treasury have been reported.—United Press.

Gift of Roman Camp To Nation MUSEUM BUILT OF STONE FROM HADRIAN'S WALL

Newcastle, Aug. 10.

Professor George M. Trevelyan, Vice-Chairman of the National Trust, and Regius Professor of Modern History at Cambridge, stated in opening the Roman Wall Museum at Housesteads, Northumberland, to-day, that the whole of the Housesteads Camp site and the adjoining portion of the Roman Wall is to be preserved for the nation.

The land is Professor Trevelyan's property and he announced that he had entered into a covenant with the National Trust, binding himself and future owners of the site to prevent building or tree-planting.

The Museum has been built by the Housesteads Management Committee at a cost of £200 from stone used in the actual building of the Roman Wall, and dug up by excavators in former years.

It stands on wild moors, almost midway between the North Sea and the Solway. Hadrian's Wall touches the northern side of the camp, and the site combines historic interest and natural beauty.

Professor Trevelyan said that the survival of the Roman Wall in this motor age enabled many people to see the past glories of Rome. The number of visitors to the camp (15,000 last year) was now sufficient to enable it to pay its way.

Professor R. G. Collingwood, of Oxford, the authority on Roman Britain, said that in his opinion this country was grossly "under-museumed." It was difficult to get large-scale modern buildings. He suggested that a large number of small buildings should be made available.

Mr. Eric Birley, Secretary of the Housesteads Committee, said the Committee was aiming at something on the lines of the little museums strung along the Rhineland.

Mr. F. S. Simpson, an excavator,

WOMAN ROBS RELATIVE

ORDERED TO PAY $100 AMENDS

Ho Lui, 29, married woman, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with the theft of a gold watch and chain, three gold appendages, a jade appendage, and $5 in money, to the total value of $150, from Tsang Yee-kwu, married woman, at No. 16 Landale Street, second floor, on August 13. Detective-Inspector A. E. Carey said defendant was a relative of the complainant, and about two months ago came to live with her. On August 13 when complainant woke up in the morning she found the articles mentioned in the charge missing. Defendant was also missing, and her clothes had been taken away. Defendant left behind her four-year-old daughter. On August 18, complainant saw defendant travelling in a tramcar in Johnston Road and had her taken into custody. The gold watch and jade appendage, to the value of $52, had been recovered, and on defendant was found $15 in Canton currency and $9.55 in Hongkong currency, also three gold finger rings and a metal wrist watch, which she stated she had bought out of the proceeds of the sale of the gold chain and gold appendages. The property not recovered was valued at $52. Mr. Schofield ordered defendant to pay complainant $100 amends, and remanded her for 48 hours in police custody to find the money.

YOUNG GIRL HARBOURED

MARRIED WOMAN CONVICTED

Appearing before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning on an amended charge of harbouring a young girl, Lau Wai-tai alias Lo Hol, at No. 178 Lockhart second floor, on July 28, Chan Suk-yin, 34, married woman, was convicted and fined $50. Defendant was originally charged with another woman, So Yee, with taking part in a transaction to transfer the possession of a minor, and So Yee was discharged. So Yee had, however, been fined $150, or two months' hard labour, in connection with a previous transaction with regard to the same girl. Mr. A. el Arculli, appearing for Chan Suk-yin, said there was reasonable excuse for the defendant to have harboured the girl, as the girl had not been happy with So Yee. Further, the girl herself had remained with the second defendant of her own accord, although she had been asked to leave. It had also been stated in evidence, at the last hearing, that the girl was intended to be given in marriage to a cousin of So Yee, and under the circumstances it was quite reasonable for the defendant to have allowed her to remain with her. Further, the girl was really meant to be adopted by the defendant, who had paid $120 to the first defendant in the original case. The defendant therefore had only done an act of kindness in trying to make the girl happy. Mr. Schofield convicted defendant, remarking that her proper course was to have gone to the S.C.A. or the police when she could have legalised the position. He did not, however, think it was a case for heavy punishment. Inspector Ellis conducted the case.

quarter of 1936 than in the previous quarter and 10.9 per cent. greater than in the second quarter of 1935. The indices both for manufacturing industries and for all groups represented the greatest volume of production in any quarter so far recorded, although normally there is less activity in the second than in the first quarter of the year.—British Wireless.

STALL FOKI SENT TO PRISON

Ip Kan, 33, stall foki, living at 7 Peking Road, who stole an imitation leather pocket-book from Mr. Kampman, married woman, who was leaving the Colony by the Canton-Kowloon Railway at 4.30 p.m. yesterday, was brought before Mr. E. Hims-worth at the Kowloon Magistracy.

Defendant stated that he had merely picked up the bag and told a small boy on the platform, whom he knew, to stand there and see if anyone came to claim it. He waited a long time, and as no one came to get the bag, he left for his house.

Sergeant Haynes, stated that complainant left the bag on the seat of the 3rd class coach which she was about to leave. When she came back in a few minutes, the bag was missing.

In the bag was $41.00 Hongkong currency and $14 Canton currency. When defendant was taken to the station, $40.25 was found on him. A search of defendant's room revealed the rest of the money and the pocket-book. His Worship sentenced defendant to two months in gaol.

COLONY TRADE

DOLLAR BASIS INCREASE

An interim report issued by the Statistics Office of the Imports and Exports Department on the trade of the Colony for July, 1936, states that imports of merchandise amounted to a total of $36.4 millions (£2.3 millions), as compared with $26.7 millions (£2.8 millions) in July, 1935—a dollar increase of 36.3 per cent, and a sterling decrease of 17.9 per cent; whilst exports totalled $26.2 millions (£1.7 millions), as compared with $18.0 millions (£1.9 millions)—a dollar increase of 45.0 per cent and a sterling decrease of 10.5 per cent.

Total imports during the first seven months of the year 1936 amounted to

NEW YORK CONTINUES ADVANCE CHICAGO BEATEN AGAIN RED SOX GET DRUBBING

New York, Aug. 19.
their push for National League
honours, leaving Chicago well behind and gaining to within a few points of St. Louis Cardinals, the leaders. Giants beat Brooklyn
Dodgers again to-day, three to two,
when Ott and Rippe cracked out home runs. Giants had seven and Dodgers five hits.

Chicago was defeated by Pittsburgh, five to four, the Pirates hitting twelve in the Cubs' seven. In the night-cap, Boston was beaten seven
to two, when each got eleven hits.

With fifteen hits and a home run
by Owen, Detroit managed to get eight runs, but they were not enough to beat the formidable St. Louis Browns, who are forging up from the bottom of the League in a late rally that is upsetting the calculations of the leading teams. Browns smashed Detroit's pitchers for fifteen hits, and got thirteen runs, including homers by Solters and Bottomley.

New York recovered itself to beat Washington, seven to four, with twelve hits to eight, and a homer by Dimaggio.—Reuter.

pared with the corresponding period of 1935, and exports increased by 18.0 per cent, whilst sterling values showed decrease of 28.9 per cent.
In the case of imports, and 26.1 per cent in the case of exports.

Warship Cost Mounting U.S. MUST SPEND MANY MILLIONS (Special To "Telegraph")

Washington, Aug. 20.
The opening by the Secretary of State for the Navy of bids for six 1,500-ton destroyers has disclosed that the cost of warship construction in the United States has advanced $1,000,000 per vessel during the year.
The tender submitted by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's shipbuilding yard at Quincy, Massachusetts, was the lowest, their quotation for the construction of six new destroyers being $4,000,000 each, as compared with $3,075,000 successfully bid a year ago for two destroyers now under construction.
The Electric Boat Corporation submitted a bid of $2,907,700 for each of three submarines.

In addition to the above, which have been accepted, the U.S. Navy Yards are building three submarines

RELIGIOUS FELLOWSHIP

During the first half of last month, London was the meeting place of the World Congress of Faiths. Its objective was neither an appraisal of various religions, nor an attempt to merge them into a visible unity. It is believed that each religion has its own individuality, and that it is best for each to develop its own distinctive values. What makes a Congress possible is a firm conviction that each has something to contribute to the common stock. The promotion of fellowship becomes therefore the one great aim. It is peculiarly appropriate that this Congress happened to be meeting at a time when in the sphere of international politics another institution whose object is world-wide fellowship (it has adopted the colder name of "co-operation") is undergoing the severest test of its short life. Some people think that the League of Nations received its deathblow at the recent meetings of its Council and Assembly at Geneva. Just as the World Congress of Faiths believes that it is good to have separate religions, and not one World Religion, so those who drafted the Covenant of the League of Nations built upon the idea that each nation should retain its pre-existing sovereignty and independence, and repudiated the conception of a World-State. But there must be co-operation. First, they must be prepared to obey a common law and to refer their disputes and grievances for decision by the tribunals of that law. Secondly, they agree to use their united forces against law breakers and aggressors. Recent events show that there is not enough of the spirit of co-operation to put League principles into operation. Italy deliberately broke the law she had solemnly accepted. Other nations refused to take united action against Italy in a cause where their own interests were not directly attacked, when it appeared that such action might end in the necessary use of military force. In short, the co-operative system has broken down. There is talk at once of reform of the League's Covenant, as if it were its machinery that had failed, whereas what is obviously wrong is the absence— at any rate among the responsible Governments—of the will to co-operate, where selfish national interests are jeopardised. Is the reform of the League by the only effective method—a change of heart—feasible? Perhaps what is needed is to change the word "co-operation" to the more passionate word "fellowship", and to accept all that the change of nomenclature implies. It is not enough for nations to act together only when their selfish national interests are obviously and directly advantaged. They must be prepared to respond with alacrity to the call of human brotherhood. Perhaps this can only come about when the nations are inspired by that sense of man's high destiny, which all religions—so we learn from the World Congress—profess to realise.

PEACE—or PACIFISM?

Ritchie
CALDER

"WAR meant this to me twenty years ago"

MARCHING feet, beating a death-or-glory tattoo on the cobble-stones; bayonets, yet unstained, glinting in the sun; kilts, swinging and flaunting with the arrogance of unbloody youth and the bag-pipes awakening the quiet of the Strath to a war-ecstasy. . . .

Said a Wise Woman, who watched with eyes filled with tears and with foreboding:

"I am thinking it needs more courage to wear a white-feather in your buttonhole than a cockade in your glen-garry."

To the small boy, who looked at her with reproach and shame, this was heresy; this was treason.

That Wise Woman was my mother, with two sons in the army, and that small boy, of 20 years ago, was I, who, with my generation, saw in the blood-unction of War only the consecration of Courage.

IT WAS not until, in the promised years of "it-will-never-happen-again," I began to think for myself, to understand the meaning of mass-hysteria, of poster-dugged patriotism, and of lie-inflamed passions, that I understood her.

And I became a pacifist.

That, in five words, would seem to be my answer to the question, "Peace or Pacifism?" for a pacifist would see no contradiction in it.

But, alas, "Peace" and "Pacifism" can no longer be taken for granted as they were 20 years ago, when Peace was a world-religion, with all peoples in its communion, and Pacifism was its creed. To

NOTES OF THE DAY

There is a strong probability that within a short period of time France will find herself a nation with radical Socialistic leanings bounded on three sides by radical Rightists, Nazis or Fascists. Frenchmen will then experience the sensations known to Germans who, during the past little while may have imagined a pressure of political antipathy from east and west, represented by Russia and France. Whether or not this situation will have any serious effect upon the position in Europe remains problematical, but there is little doubt that some Frenchmen will feel a sense of constriction with Nazi Germany on the one hand, Fascist Italy on another and a revolutionary Rightist Government in Spain.

With France between these forces, the gentlemen in Berlin and Rome may feel they will have more hope of satisfactory bargaining in matters of a delicate political nature. It is conceivable, then, that the allegation that ready Italian and German assistance has been given to the Spanish rebels has good foundation. The reason for these two nations' apparent lack of desire to join in a non-intervention pact with respect to the Spanish civil war may be found in the same quarter. More and more the nations of Europe are drifting into political alignments similar to those of 1914 and earlier.

had failed, whereas what is obviously wrong is the absence— at any rate among the responsible Governments—of the will to co-operate, where selfish national interests are jeopardised. Is the reform of the League by the only effective method—a change of heart—feasible? Perhaps what is needed is to change the word "co-operation" to the more passionate word "fellowship", and to accept all that the change of nomenclature implies. It is not enough for nations to act together only when their selfish national interests are obviously and directly advantaged. They must be prepared to respond with alacrity to the call of human brotherhood. Perhaps this can only come about when the nations are inspired by that sense of man's high destiny, which all religions—so we learn from the World Congress—profess to realise.

day that question is one which searches the hearts, the soul and the minds of men and women. It must be to millions of peace-loving people what it has been to me—a torment, a conflict between that deep-seated instinct which abhors the thought of war and the reason which argues that we must think of war if we are to avoid it. And upon my generation there is a special responsibility. That was the generation which the last war passed by, touching us only with its more gaudy pinions, bailing us with its glamour and excitement; the generation which is the parent of a new one; a dangerous generation, liable to be moved by awakening echoes and swept away by the taunt of "What of your children?" a generation disillusioned, not by War but by Peace.

Pacifism was simple and uncomplicated in those years when war-revolution was so strong that even war-books could not find a publisher, nor war-plays a producer, when we believed that militarism was buried in the white sepulchre of Versailles and peace perpetuated in the League of Nations. Then, when the lichen began to blur the names on war memorials, so, too, the memories of the War gradually became overgrown. Or, like a merciful anesthetic, men willed away the nightmares and time healed the horror-lacerations of the mind.

A subtle change began. One can almost date it from the time when people all over the world began to flock to "Journey's End" and "The Last Days of Pompeii." They called them "powerful anti-war propaganda," but, psychologically, they were dangerously significant—men were beginning to tolerate again the thoughts of war and were seeking reminders of what had seemed unforgettable.

THE WHITE sepulchre of Versailles had cracked and had revealed only putrefaction within. Its rottenness poisoned the world.

Peace, which was only the War prolonged in penalties and perils, and which was based on war-guilt, war debts and reparations, drove nations, like debtors threatened by the bailiffs, behind the locked doors of economic nationalism.

Hatreds were born afresh. And disillusionment.

In the new, ill-hallowed world, it was obvious that the horrors and lessons of the last war had become useless scarecrows while the cartoons devoured the fruits of Peace, and nations tolled and their unemployed starved in vain.

And the League of Nations, noble in its ideals and honest in its conception, had become in its practice only the Grand Alliance of the "victors" and of the new nations born at Versailles, all of them seeking, not true equality, but domination and humiliation of Germany.

PEACE needed a new architect. Arthur Henderson became that architect. In 1930, the hopes of the world ran high. It was to find true equality in Disarmament and in the readjustment of world economy.

Within two years, those hopes were betrayed. The Peace System crumbled. Disarmament dissolved in British hypocrisy, Hitler, Manchuria, Abyssinia. . . . Nations, professing Peace, prepared for War.

In such a world Pacifism might seem an anachronism. Pacifism can never be an anachronism. It is an ever-present, ever-constant ideal, without which true Peace can never be achieved.

I am a realist, but only in the sense that I believe that such ideals can be made realities.

But, at this crisis of civilisation, is Pacifism enough? With all devoutness, I wish to Heaven it were. I, for one, would find it easy to be a Pacifist, to say with "Dick Sheppard," George Lansbury, Aldous Huxley and their 100,000 followers, that I shall never take part in War in any shape or form. If, that is, I believed it would make the world safe for Peace. Pacifism, however, is a principle and not a policy. It has seemed to me as I have listened to the arguments between the Pacifists and the Sanctionists, between Non-Resistance and Collective Security, that the Pacifist, as an individual, had made up his mind what he should do in the war which the Sanctionists were trying to avert.

We have seen, at the National Peace Congress, where the views of both sides were expressed with frankness and sincerity, that it is possible to find a common policy. That basis rests on organised international co-operation through the League, the progressive curtailment of national sovereignty, the removal of inequities and dangers to world peace and a world conference to secure the adjustment of economic and colonial questions. It is opposed to increase in armaments and to this Government's arms programme and to Fascism and Nazism.

To that all lovers of peace can conscientiously subscribe, and with a Government with vision and clear-sightedness in power those are ideals which could become realities.

BUT, if a Socialist Government, pledged and prepared to carry out those ideals, were left with war-charged chaos into which the "National" Government and the last French Government have brought us, could it hope for Peace in the isolation of Absolute Pacifism? That would be as anarchic as the mad, ultra-nationalist, pseudo-patriotic, frankly imperialist, isolationism of the present arms race.

That way lies not Peace, but War, and the destruction of civilisation. Disarmament is not only consistent with but inherent in Collective Security.

So I, who am by every instinct a Pacifist, find myself committed by my own reasoning to the Covenant and to Sanctions which, in the ultimate resort, imply military measures.

But I do not believe that with honest statesmanship, with wholehearted and loyal support of the Covenant, War would ever happen. Not even with the so-called "lesson" of Abyssinia to challenge me. If true economic sanctions had been applied, if the source of war-supplies had been cut off and the Canal closed, when the letter of the Covenant demanded that they should be applied, Mussolini would never have attacked Abyssinia.

IT IS HERE that I charge the Absolute Pacifists with inconsistency. They disapprove of Sanctions, economic or otherwise. But Dr. Alfred Salter was asked at the National Peace Congress if the American Pacifists approved of their country supplying oil for the Italian bombers.

"I cannot say," he said. "They have not yet formed a policy on these matters."

The question applies just as bluntly to Dr. Salter and his fellow pacifists. Have they formed a policy?

Supply oil or war-materials and they condone aggression. Refuse them and they are applying Sanctions.

The League, which in betraying Abyssinia was itself betrayed, can still be made a force for Peace.

And I, who was a pacifist, am still, as a believer in the League of Nations, a war-resister.

Pirates' Treasure

FROM time to time one reads of expeditions going to little known islands in isolated parts of the world in search of hidden treasure, but whether that treasure has been found, or whether the Journeys have been a vain, is not recorded. Nevertheless, hidden away in some of the tiny islands of the Indian Ocean, there must be untold wealth.

During the seventeenth century islands such as the Seychelles, numbering some ninety-eight, and scattered over a huge area, were the haunt of pirates who used them as bases from which to harry the shipping on the Indian Ocean. This shipping carried in its holds articles of immense value from the Indies. Silks, embroideries, ivory, gold, and jewels were numbered among other articles and as many of these ships never came home there is no doubt that they fell into the hands of pirates.

To this day treasure hunting goes on in the Seychelles. Gold coins and rings are occasionally unearthed in the beds of mountain streams that cascade through the palm grove slopes of Mahe. Ancient carvings of beasts and signs of the Zodiac are to be seen on the face of rocks in parts of the island.

FALSE TRAILS

Treasure plans are numerous, and, incidentally, the Seychellois are adept at making plans for their own, and others', amusement. Some of these plans are thought to be authentic, and landowners never tire of digging up their estates in the hope of unearthing hidden wealth.

Some years ago a sailing ship was seen one evening to put in to a pretty cove. A boat landed some men, who were gone, while a deep hole and a coin or two were seen in the place where the tent had stood. It was heard later that treasure had been found. The owner of the land was heard to say, in despair, but nothing could be done.

Many of the inhabitants of the Seychelles bear names of corsair captains of old, while graves of dead and gone pirates are to be seen in various parts of the island of Mahe, while in Praslin Island are graves so ancient that their origin is not known. Probably they are Moslems, for centuries ago the Moors sailed the seas of the Indian Ocean.

Unfortunately for treasure seekers, the local inhabitants of Seychelles do not encourage treasure hunters on their land, for they consider that, if there is any treasure to be found it is up to themselves to find it; otherwise leave it where it is hidden.

LOST LOOT

During the time I lived in Mahe I had a bungalow that stood beneath the palms, some seven miles from Victoria. One day I was digging in the plantation for something to do. My spade struck an object. I dug feverishly, and unearthed—an ancient cannon ball. In fact, I unearthed three, which had been buried close together, throughout the centuries. But, alas, they were the total amount of my discoveries.

There must be great wealth secreted in parts of the Seychelles, for the islands once swarmed with corsairs. Times out of number they would return from their forays with their ships laden with plunder. After a few weeks' carousal they would again put to sea, and return with their ships loaded with ill-gotten gains and prisoners. At last they would put to sea, when they would fall in with a ship of war. A blood-thirsty battle would ensue, and the pirate ship would be captured and sunk.

The pirate captain and crew were generally taken to Ile de France, as Mauritius was then named, or to Reunion, when the prisoners would be tried and hanged.

What of the treasure of weeks and months that had been taken to the Seychelles and hidden away? There was nowhere else they could dispose of it except at their bases. These hoards will come to light, and even after the Government have taken their share the finders will be rich for life.

RANDLE'S INSPIRED SHOTS WIN BOWLS TITLE

R. Duncan and J. E. Noronha study a head during yesterday's lawn bowls championship match. (Photo: Mee Cheung).

(By "Veritas")

Such a poor standard of play was struck for the first twelve heads in yesterday's lawn bowls pairs championship final at the Civil Service Club that it needed a vast imagination to realise a Colony title was at stake. Thereafter a pronounced improvement was noted, and certainly the succeeding four heads left little to be desired.

S. Randle and R. Duncan strolled out comparatively easy winners against what was nothing but a one-player opposition. J. E. Noronha played exceedingly well for most of the match, but F. X. M. da Silva, chiefly, I think through nervousness, was no match for Randle, and constantly failed to consolidate splendid positions established by his partner.

Twice Noronha got in four good shots. The first time, on the fifth head, Silva failed to block and Randle came along with a take-out to convert the position into a winning one-shot head. The second time, on the 10th, Silva was again too short with his guards and Randle rained home a drive to put the jack on Duncan's two back woods.

INTERESTING DUELS

Duncan and Noronha had some interesting duels, especially on the short heads, which Duncan always chose. Duncan drew with great accuracy on these heads, but Noronha was not easily put off and more than once finished with the shot wood.

Undeniably Randle dominated the match even though he was often shockingly short. Yet invariably he managed to plant at least one good wood around the jack, and several times turned losing positions into winning heads as a result of a skilful drive. The luck—and there was a fair amount going—was certainly with the winners, but as is often the case, fortune favoured the brave. Quite a few of the shots which robbed Silva and Noronha of good heads were wicks off two or more woods. The game did not begin to get interesting until the twelfth head. At that time the pair were on level terms at nine-all. Then Duncan showed real improvement in his drawing while Randle had some inspired moments when faced with delicate situations, so that they scored on the next six heads to give themselves a lead of 18-9.

The losers retaliated with a single and a two on the 19th and 20th heads, but this was clearly insufficient, and with Noronha choosing a maximum head on the 21st, the Kowloon Bowling Green Club couple chalked up another single and so won by 18-12.

BEST HEAD OF THE MATCH

The 14th head was probably the best of the match. It started with Noronha getting shot with his last wood to lie three. But Randle came along with his first delivery and took two out for second shot. Silva drew perfectly and regained the position, but Randle responded nobly with another lovely shot. Silva drove with his last wood to disturb a finely built-up head, but the result was to leave Randle and Duncan with two shots.

The 15th was another good head. Duncan laid two lovely draw shots on the jack, while Noronha replied with an even better one. Three of the first four woods were wickets. Randle drove with his first wood to upset the position although Silva still had the shot. Randle went up again with his second and scored a wick for the shot wood which Silva failed rather dismally to dislodge.

The 16th saw Noronha lay four excellent shots. Duncan being out-bowled for once.

Randle enjoyed another wick with his first shot to lie second and with his third carried the jack to Duncan's two back woods. Still Silva had plenty of chance to draw for shot, but he was badly narrow and distressingly short.

Duncan came into the limelight again on the 17th, laying two ideal shots on the jack. Silva altered the position with a couple of really good woods, but it was Randle who got tied the head. He came up on the forehead with a masterly shot and consolidated by planting in another on the backhand.

HELPED TO OBLITERATE

This improved bowling was pleasing and helped to obliterate from memory the very poor heads which featured the first part of the match.

Despite Randle's inconsistency full honours must be accorded him for his many brilliant shots in times of crisis. Noronha was the most consistent bowler of the four and was unlucky to figure on the losing side. Duncan had some good and bad moments, which is to be expected when playing on a somewhat strange green and under the stress of such an occasion. Silva, unhappily, could not touch anything like proper form, though there were times when he had reason to protest against his bad form.

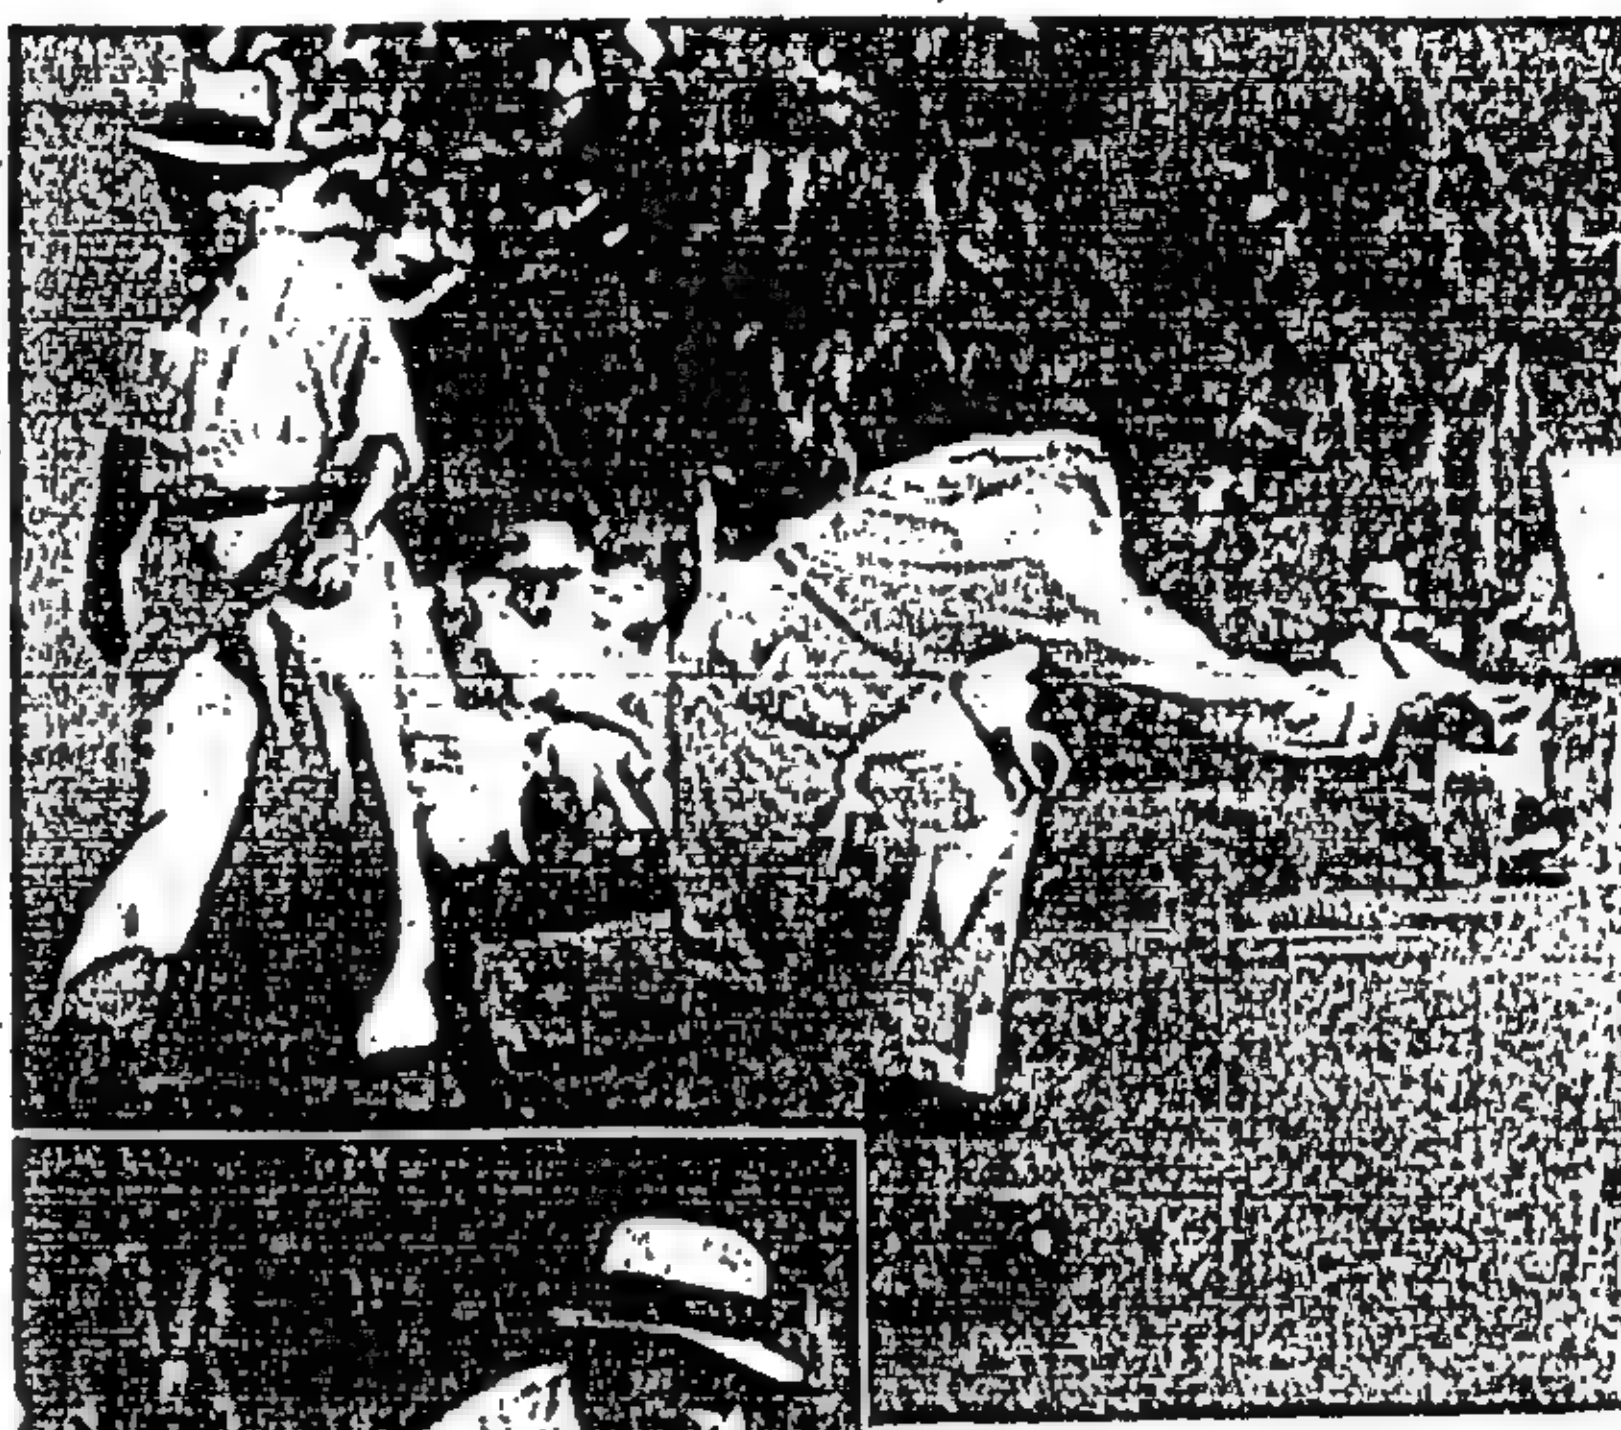

The trouble with all four players was their insistence on bowling short. Dozens of valuable opportunities were wasted because of this weakness. It was not the best championship final seen in Hongkong, but it did have its brighter moments, and nobody will deny the winners credit for their achievement.

BRADDOCK'S HAND INJURY

May Cause Title Bout To Be Postponed

New York, Aug. 18. The Athletic Commission has postponed until August 21 the decision on the request by Mr. Joseph Gould, James J. Braddock's manager, for a postponement of the scheduled fight between Braddock and Schmeling in September for the heavyweight championship of the world. The request has been made because of an injury to the champion's left hand. Five physicians have asserted that an operation would not alleviate the injury. However, Gould has arranged for Braddock to enter hospital for an operation on Thursday although Dr. William Walker has

ARSENAL GETTING PREPARED For Soccer Season

(By G.W.R. Smith) Sunday Express

George Allison is back in harness again after his holiday, back in the atmosphere of that severe and sombre room at the Arsenal headquarters that looks more like a bishop's study than the office of a football director.

Not that there is anything episcopal about George Allison, although personally I think he would look rather well in gaiters. He has one of the hardest jobs in all the realm of sport. Keeping Arsenal on top of the football world is a task that takes a very toll of mind and body.

Do you know that last year Mr. Allison travelled 30,000 miles on foot-ball business? He rushed up north again this week-end. That is not every man's idea of an easy job. Anyway, he has come up smiling for another season. His welcome was warm as ever, when he ushered me to a seat beside his curved and curve-enveloping chair.

AN ARMY AT WORK

Through the window came the noise of an army at work, the men who are labouring day and night, week-ends included, to complete Arsenal's new East stand.

The new stand, which is costing £100,000, will be ready for spectators on the opening day of the season, August 29. The directors' old quarters in the West stand are to be converted to the use of enclosure patrons. These will surely be the most luxuriously housed in the country. They will have a special entrance, a lounge, buffet, restaurant, snack bar and American bar. Anything from a cocktail to caviare is the Arsenal catering slogan.

NEW GYMNASIUM

The directors are to be housed in the new East stand, which will have seating accommodation for 10,500 people. Already the work is well under schedule, and it is hoped that the official opening will not be later than September.

"The players are to have a gymnasium, fitted with the most up-to-date appliances, new dressing-rooms, rest room, and bathrooms," Mr. Allison told me. "The trainers, too, will have new quarters."

"Terry Wilson, chief instructor at the Carnegie Physical Training College, Leeds, will spend a week with the Arsenal players in August, giving them instruction in physical training based on the most modern lines. "I believe that in these hectic days the psychological side of sport has a very distinct bearing on the results achieved. It is not sufficient for a man to play football in a purely physical sense. He has got to train his mentality to it and use his brain to figure out the cause and effect."

INSPIRATION

"If home surroundings and home comforts can inspire a team to greater efforts and instil into their minds a greater determination for success, then I am sure that the Arsenal Stadium will be an inspiration."

"When our new East stand is completed, the stadium will rank as the finest football enclosure in the world. In the stand there will be some thousands of rubber-cushioned upholstered seats. All told, the ground will then hold just 80,000 people, with a seating capacity of 18,500."

Our Daily Golf Hint

Swing rather upright for an explosive shot out of a bunker. Keep the head still and tear into the sand at the back of the ball. Don't try to follow through.

How England Retained The Davis Cup

HURRICANE PERRY WILTS CRAWFORD

Quist's Grand Win

(By H. S. Scrivenor)

By 7.40 yesterday evening Great Britain had won the Davis Cup for the fourth year in succession. It was F. J. Perry who rose in his wrath, after his team-mate, H. W. Austin, had gone down to A. K. Quist and put us in jeopardy, to beat his old rival, J. H. Crawford, by 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

He treated us, when we were beginning to dither, to a priceless exhibition of the greatest living exponent. He is par excellence the man who seems able to crush the ball whenever he wants to in a manner which leaves such a consummate artist as Crawford powerless.

As a matter of fact, Crawford played finely, but not finely enough. In the first set Perry pipped him twice on his service, and was out at 6-2. He was up on him again in the very first game of the second set with the aid of a rather lucky net-cordier to take him out at 6-3. The third set was even more rapid than the second. Perry again got his service lead early, and went gallily to 5-0, but dropped three games after having a match point in the eighth.

It was, indeed, to hark back to the time-honoured poem, a glorious victory, since the elect of Australia are men of real might.

QUIST'S PLAY

The defeat of Austin by Quist emphasised the fact that the Australian is a really fine player. He has all the virtues—accuracy, aggressiveness, the ability to make all the strokes on the board and retrieving powers which are at times quite phenomenal. I put his volleying in the van of his accomplishments.

All the same I do not think that Austin should have lost that match; he played from the point of view of what we have a right to expect of him was disappointing. As compared with Quist, he was insecure off the ground, was almost beaten in duel of baseline driving and (as against Crawford on Saturday) was the less powerful server.

An things went he ought to questionably to have staked his all on volleying, which was fine when he gave it a chance. But he was chary of taking risks because he was passed now and again, and that is where he slipped up. He was a bit unlucky to lose the first set, in which he was quite good, by dropping his service after advantage to put Quist ahead at 5-4 with the aid of a net-cordier. Then Quist went out with a love game. He was a bit unlucky to lose the second set, with Austin just about at his best, leading 6-3. He won his service for 6-3 on the resumption and had a healthy chance of winning the third set—in which he held the service (Continued on Page 9.)

HOW AUSTRALIA WON DOUBLES

CAME A LITTLE DISAPPOINTING

(By STANLEY N. DOUST)

London, July 28. The challenge round of the Davis Cup between Australia, the challengers, and Great Britain, the holders, is still alive.

Yesterday, before a big crowd on the Centre Court at Wimbledon, J. H. Crawford and A. K. Quist (Australia) beat C. R. D. Tuckey and G. P. Hughes in the doubles by 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 10-8. The score thus stands: Great Britain 2, Australia 1, with two singles to be played to-day.

Yesterday's doubles was not a great one. There were too many bad returns of service and too many short lobs by both sides.

Quist was the most consistent player of the four, and Tuckey, far behind. I liked Tuckey's aggression. He never flinched in making his returns, his interceptions were good, and he served magnificently. Much of the patchy play was because the battle was so grim. Britain had the advantage of serving first in all four sets. But when Hughes lost the first game of the match to 0, and Quist winning his service for a 2-0 lead, the Australians never looked like losing that match. In the second set the Englishmen were on top all the way, capturing Quist's service twice and Crawford's once.

The third set went with the service for ten games, when Hughes again lost a love game, to put Australia ahead to 6-5.

It was left to the fourth and last set to provide the thrills. Attacking splendidly, Hughes and Tuckey went to 2-5. Then for the next four games Crawford played inspired tennis, and with Quist holding his own they passed the English score at 6-3.

Here Quist flattered, and the Englishmen drew level at 6-all and led by the odd game to 8-7. Australian levelled at 8-all, and, disconcerting their tentative lobbing, sent over some lovely returns which carried them to victory.

defined one, for Mr. Huxley, who can still elicit a character in acid, is in these pages at any rate, extremely diffident about causes and crusades. And, apart from his old obsession with personal liberty, I feel that he has not thought out the implications of Anthony's final attitude.

Still, though I found Eyesless in Gaea disappointing, it is unquestionably significant, symbolic, in its very conception, of a host of reasonable, well-meaning, anxious people of our day and generation. And it is to its author's credit that he has grown increasingly concerned with the state of the world and the folly of mankind.

But, in his later work, his sceptical, analytical habit has mastered his more sensitive side, and he has always been an extremely sensitive writer. He could be much more if he would only cease eliciting his characters and his themes to shreds.

TURNING at last from those Spanish peasants who have occupied her recent stories, Marguerite Steenen has found a fruitful field for her talent in Return of a Heroine (Gollancz, 7s. 6d.).

The heroine is Phoebe Jordan; her return is from prison; and her heroism lies in her having given poison to her beloved mother, who was dying painfully of cancer. The family naturally are revolted by her action, she has disrepute and impoverishment thrust upon her, and she is despised by them. She was a spoilt child, anyway, and her arrival in the home is a calamity.

Fortunately for them, she gets a job as companion to a rich and aristocratic elderly woman. Her mantle luggings when she departs in a bundle of rags.

TURNING at last from those Spanish peasants who have occupied her recent stories, Marguerite Steen has found a fruitful field for her talent in Return of a Heroine (Gollancz, 7s. 6d.).

The heroine in question is Flabou Jordan: her real name (from prison) and her heroism lies in her having given poison to her beloved mother, who was dying painfully of cancer. The family, naturally, are revolted by her action. She has disgraced and impoverished them. She was a spoilt child, anyway, and her arrival in the home is a calamity.

Fortunately for them, she gets a job as companion to a rich and aristocratic elderly woman. Her main luggage when she departs is a bundle of sennational newspaper cuttings concerning her trial. And we leave her living in a state of distress on slavishly by her devoted mistress-companion and by everyone else around her.

Miss Steen has not argued the case for or against euthanasia as a novelist, her main interest is in the psychology of a human being who, quite calmly and coldly, can assume the responsibility of deciding that she has the right to take her own life. In Phoebe a core of strength—even though it arises from a sympathetic weakness at feeling helpless and prolonged suffering—which will do much to make her personality, but a sort of parasite that clings and climbs and eventually strangles the "hust" to which she has attached herself.

Phoebe is a repulsive creature, not because of her "crime" or her "heroinism"—call it what you will—but because of her own nature.

I was attracted by several of the minor characters in this tale—particularly Phoebe's young sister, Penny, the ugly duckling who is going to be a swan, and Stephen, the tailor's cutter whom Phoebe will neither marry nor let go.

Phoebe, a Heroine, in short, is the most interesting and mature novel which Miss Stein has given us.

O Fall the men who had a hand in the making of the Versailles Treaty there were—so far as I know—only three who both saw what ills it boded for the future and did something about it.

The third was Jan Christian Smuts. It is the Smuts of Paris and Versailles and the years after that is the theme of the second volume of Sarah Gertrude Millien's General Smuts (Faber and Faber, U.S.).

Smuts protested; but he also signed the League. He is on the document on which he had written to Mr. Lloyd George that "this Treaty breathes a poisonous spirit of revenge which must yet scorch the fair faces of the corners of Europe, and Europe will not, alas! and it cannot be durable."

But in Paris in 1919, as before, after Jan Smuts was a dual personality. Smuts the Idealist and "Squid" Jan Smuts walked and worked in the same body, each seemingly unconscious of the other's thoughts and actions.

For "alm Jan" had played a large part in the drafting of the document which Smuts commended. And from working to make it less harsh for Germany, he had been all for stiffness and severity.

Leaving aside for it is irrelevant his big share in the making of the League Covenant, his two chief contributions dealt with colonies and reparations.

On colonies it was Smuts who took the lead in demanding that "in circumstances should any of the German colonies be restored to Germany." One of his two personalities could protest against "dismemberment"; the other was determined to get S.W. Africa as the Union's share of the spoil.

The armistice terms laid down by the Allies, that "compensation will be made by Germany to the civil population of the Allies and the property by land, by sea and from the air."

Solemnly a committee presided over by W. M. Hughes argued that "damage to the civilian population really meant the civilian part of the war was over, the civilian population would have to foot the bill."

The French suggested £40,000,000,000 as a reasonable sum. It sounds absurd, but in the mad rush of the war, it was very much in the air. The Americans were refused to agree to any interpretation.

Here was a perfect job for "Jan." And it was his memorandum, a masterpiece of ingenious sophistry which persuaded Wilson that all money that had been paid in separate allowances, or that would be paid for war pensions, could fairly be regarded as "damage to the civilian population by land, by sea and from the air."

Does Smuts, the great humanitarian, the preacher of peace and of an end to the wars of Smuts who authored the "massacre of Bulhoek" in the name of Smuts who ordered the bombing of the Bondswomen of Oldenham? Does Smuts who in that year deliberately let the "John Brown revolution" develop for two years so that things would get so bad that they would extend for a bloodless procession (1883 killed and wounded) which would "prove an object lesson to the people of this country" even today?

I wish I could say that Mrs. M. was a second volume was worthy of them, or even of the first volume, but I cannot say that. No probability regards as this writing and imperialism has got the better of her.

Still, in spite of the fact that I am not a student because I have not been in Smuts. W. K.

CAPTAIN PHILIP MUMFORD is one of a very considerable number of soldiers, sailors and airmen who believe that the organisation of international air force is practicable and can alone save the world from destroying itself.

His most readable book, Humanity, Air Power, and War (Jarrold, 12s. 6d.), argues the case for such force with clarity and sometimes with eloquence.

Some will feel that there will have to be a stage of co-operation between national forces before an international force will be accepted by governments and peoples. But there will be the authority and indignation and contempt that great discovery of aviation has led us not to wider and brighter horizons, but to a horizon black with imperialism.

which everyone was reading eight years ago? It was one of the unforgettable war novels, as moving, in its fashion, as All Quiet on the Western Front. Well, its author, Arnold Zweig, has written another book, what is called a best-seller, Young Woman of 1914, or The Case of Sergeant Grischka, and, with grim irony, he has called it Education Before Verdun (Secken and Warburg, Sa. Gd.).

Slower in pace and more diffuse, it tells the hideous story of those six months in 1914 when Verdun was the hell for all of the hells of the Great War.

Hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen and Germans were lost there in the hail of millions of shells. Whole battalions were wiped out and bricked in where they lay.

Herr Zweig chooses us, of course, to collect characters, some of whom were in the earlier books. There is Bertin, a marked man because he gave German prisoners a drink of water. There is Kroyzing, killed in an advanced trench to which he was moved because he attempted to expose a mine to a rocket.

And there is Niggl.

But, first and last and all the time, the horror of Verdun fills the stage. This powerful and relentless story is to insignificant to be called a novel. To insignificant for romantic nursing sister, anything can educate the militarist. It is Education Before Verdun.

On Reparations, Smuts' responsibility for the ten years' trouble which their swelling to impossible dimensions brought to Europe is direct.

A Mad World

The armistice terms laid down that "compensation will be made by the many for all damage to the civilian population of the Allies; and the property by land, by sea and from the air".

Solomely a committee presided over by W. M. Hughes argued that "damage to the civilian population is really meant to include all that has since the war the civilian population have to foot the bill.

The French suggested £40,000,000,000, as a reasonable sum. It sounds mad, madness in retrospect; but the world was very mad in those days, and the Americans at one refused to agree to so fantastic an interpretation.

ALLEGED CABARET WARFARE

DANCE PARTNERS
ENTICED AWAY?
CONTRACTS EXPLAINED

That the China Emporium Ballroom is attempting in every way to undermine the business of its rival, the New Majestic Dancing Academy, by enticing away its dancing partners, was alleged by Mr. M. A. da Silva at the Summary Court this morning when a cabaret girl was sued for damages for breach of contract. The action was brought by Mr. Charles Gray, trading as the New Majestic Dancing Academy, and the defendant was Lau Mei-kuen, described as a dancing partner, who was sued for $621.05 as damages for breach of contract. Mr. Silva was for the plaintiff, and the defendant was represented by Mr. G. S. Ford. Mr. Silva said the defendant was brought down from Shanghai sometime in April this year under a contract whereby she was to work as a dancing partner for the defendant. He said she was to be employed by another dancing academy in the Colony for a period of one year after the expiration of the agreement. Should she commit any breach of the contract, she was to pay the plaintiff a sum equivalent to all her earnings for the term of her employment with him. Twenty days before the expiration of the contract, the defendant left her employment and joined the China Emporium Ballroom.

OBJECT OF ACTION
"It is the case for the plaintiff," said Mr. Silva, "that not only are we suing for damages for breach of contract, but that there was no justification for the defendant to leave her employment. It is purely a question of a civil liability on the part of the plaintiff, attempting in every way to undermine the business of the plaintiff. Whenever the plaintiff brings down dancing partners from Shanghai, it is the purpose of the China Emporium, in every possible manner, to entice them away either by promise of better hours or better remuneration. This case is similar to those that had occurred before. It is not one isolated case, but more than ten. The action is being brought to curb the practice of the China Emporium and also to recover damages from the defendant for breach of contract."

The plaintiff, in the witness-box, said his academy used to bring dancing partners down from Shanghai, and as a precautionary measure it was the practice to get them to sign contracts before leaving that part. The period of employment agreed upon was April 11 to June 11. The defendant was not given any salary but was entitled to 60 per cent. of the value of the tickets obtained by her. She worked until May 21, when she went and joined the China Emporium. During this period she had obtained $250 on account of her earnings. On May 18 he received certain information from Mr. Bellino, as a result of which he saw the defendant. She denied that she was contemplating joining the China Emporium. Four days later the defendant and eight others did not turn up at the Academy. He heard they had joined the China Emporium.

BETTER PAY
The following day he went to the defendant's residence and asked her if she was leaving his academy. The defendant admitted that she was, and said that the manager of the China Emporium had promised her better remuneration and better conditions. She was to receive 70 per cent. of her earnings and could absent herself whenever she liked. He reminded her of the contract whereupon she said she did not care and that he could sue her if he liked, as the manager of the China Emporium had promised to pay for any damages through breaking the agreement. He then advised her to get the promise in writing in order to safeguard herself from any trouble. The defendant, however, tried to make a fool out of him by laughing the matter off.

On May 29, when he was standing outside the quarters of his dancing partners, the defendant spoke to him and asked him to take her back. He agreed but the defendant failed to turn up that night. As a result he instructed his solicitor to issue a writ against her.

In his opinion, there was no reason why the defendant should have left her employment other than that she had been enticed away by the China Emporium. During the period that she worked for him, he made an average of $7.80 per day out of her earnings. When the defendant first joined his academy, she had not found her feet and her first week's earnings were very poor. Subsequently her earnings increased, and at the time when she left she was going very strong. The case was then adjourned to October 29, at 10 a.m.

FURTHER TYPHOON VICTIMS

SEVEN MORE BODIES FOUND IN WATER

Seven more bodies of Chinese, victims of Monday's typhoon, were recovered from the harbour by police launches yesterday. They included men, women and children.

Among the most tragic discoveries was that of a woman, aged about 30, with a three-year-old child strapped to her back, at Aldrich Day, Taikeo. At So Ko Wan, a 15-year-old girl was found with a small baby on her back.

Ho So Ming, one of the victims of the typhoon tragedy in the upper levels, was also discovered in the harbour. So far only two of the bodies have been claimed by relatives. Li Mo-lai, fisherman, of Sha Tau Kok, was admitted to Kowloon Hospital yesterday suffering from severe burns received when he received a charge of electricity on Monday. While working on a cargo junk, he touched the mast, which although wooden, was saturated with water and acted as a conductor for electricity when it fouled an electric power wire.

Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and even Vancouver were within range of aeroplanes carrying incendiary bombs with a radius of 5,000 miles. Lord Ellbank said he did not believe that Canadians fully realised the danger to coastal points.—Reuter.

FAMOUS SINGER PASSES

HARRY PLUNKETT GREENE GREAT IRISH BARITONE

London, Aug. 19. The death has occurred, at the age of 71 years, of Harry Plunkett Greene, the famous Irish baritone.—Reuter. The deceased, who was educated at Dublin and at Clifton College, was a son of Richard J. Greene, a barrister, his mother being a daughter of the third Baron Plunkett. Greene intended at first to follow his father's profession, but, having an unusually fine voice, decided in favour of a musical career. He studied music with Barracough in Dublin, from whom he received a scholarship to the Royal College of Music in London. In 1890 for a short period he was the operatic stage at Covent Garden, achieving slight success as the Commendatore in "Don Giovanni" and the Duke of Verona in "Romeo and Juliet".

It was, however, in recitals which he gave with Leonard Borwick that he made his most decisive mark both in regard to the beauty of his voice and the finesse of his interpretation. From 1902 onwards he appeared in the first productions of many of Parry's works, making in that year a profound impression by his creation of the part of Job in the oratorio of that name on his production at the Gloucester Festival. Stanford wrote a number of his finest songs specially for him.

Greene made many tours in Europe and America and was everywhere hailed as one of the greatest exponents of English song in his generation. For several years he lectured at the Royal College of Music and the Royal Academy of Music and his book "Interpretation of Song" contains the essence of his teaching.

ASSAULT STORY NOT ACCEPTED

NEWSPAPER HAWKER FINED

A hawker charged with hawking newspapers without a licence on Tuesday was again brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, after a remand during which he had been sent to hospital to be medically examined, as he accused the Indian sergeant who effected his arrest of having assaulted him.

Giving evidence, the man, Wong Yiu, said that when the sergeant arrested him in Reclamation Street, he was seized by the back. The Indian then began to strike him with a truncheon, first on the chest, and then across the neck. He pleaded with the sergeant not to strike him, but on the way to the Station, the sergeant gave him another blow with his fist under his right arm. He complained of the assault to the Inspector-on-Duty at Yau-mat Station.

In the witness-box, Indian sergeant B. 499, Bakhish Singh, denied having struck the defendant. He said defendant ran away, and when chased, bumped his chest against the iron railings in Waterloo Road. He did not use his truncheon, as there was no necessity to do so.

Sub-Inspector C. Poyntz stated that defendant made no complaint of assault to him. There was a red mark on defendant's chest, and the Indian had told witness that defendant bumped himself on the railings in Waterloo Road.

Inspector R. Shannon, the prosecuting officer, said that defendant had given the police a lot of trouble. The magistrate expressed himself as satisfied that defendant was not assaulted, and imposed a fine of $1, or seven days' imprisonment in default.

ASSAULT CHARGE WOMAN ACCUSED AT KOWLOON

Charged with assault of Yu Mun, furniture-maker at 102 Reclamation Street on Tuesday Yam Ngon-lui, 23, married woman, appeared before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

It was alleged that defendant went into the kitchen of the house and asked complainant to save some food for her from the evening meal. Complainant refused to do so and started to abuse her. Defendant picked up an earthenware rice bowl and flung it at complainant, inflicting injuries to his head and shoulder, for which he was treated at the Kowloon Hospital. Sub-Inspector Rogers asked for a formal remand of 24 hours, with defendant on $15 bail. The request was granted.

MADE HOMELESS BY TYPHOON

LOITERER'S STORY IN COURT

Chung Loi, aged 20, a vegetable gardener, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, with loitering on 245 a.m. on August 19 outside No. 92 Tai-po Road. Defendant denied the offence. Inspector W. R. Chester-Woods stated that an Indian constable saw defendant in Tai-po Road near Polio Street outside house No. 92. The house was one standing by itself and was surrounded by a big wall. Dogs were barking and the Indian saw defendant with both his hands on the wall, as if he were just about to climb it or get down. When defendant saw the constable, he ran away and was caught in Shek-pi-mat Street. After the constable had given evidence, defendant said he had no home, as his hut at Cheung Sha Wan had been blown away by the typhoon. He wandered about Tai-po Road, and borrowed a few clothes from passers-by. He then lay down outside the pavement by No. 92 and was
